The Collapsing Covid Narrative

The Covid narrative is collapsing. That's the good news. The bad news is that so many people not only fell for the narrative, but even cheered the imposition of totalitarian policies in support of it. We were told it was based on the science.

Yet it was all a big lie. Policymakers did not base decisions on science, and their policies have done far more harm than the virus.

People should never have believed the Covid narrative. Had they stayed abreast of developments and used critical thinking skills, they would not have fallen for it.

Detectable Deceptions

Dr. Anthony Fauci provided an early indicator of official deception in his quick public reversal on whether face masks are effective in fighting Covid. In March 2020, the two-faced Fauci, who became the poster child of Covid response, said on 60 Minutes, "There's no reason to be walking around with a mask. When you're in the middle of an outbreak, wearing a mask might make people feel a little bit better and it might even block a droplet, but it's not providing the perfect protection that people think that it is." Soon afterward, he strongly recommended face masks.

Fauci's early dismissal of mask effectiveness was supposedly a noble lie intended to prevent a run on masks prior to healthcare workers getting their own supply. Since then, there has been a growing recognition that the cloth face masks so many people (including Fauci) wore during the pandemic simply did not cut it.

People should have seen another red flag in the glaringly obvious double standard in how officials imposed lockdowns. Specifically, government forced most businesses and even churches to close their doors, while big-box stores were allowed to stay open. Why the virus would be less contagious at a big-box store was never explained.

Mask and lockdown policies were supposed to "flatten the curve" of the pandemic, but they didn't. Bureaucrats condemned and suppressed inexpensive off-the-shelf drugs such as hydroxychloroquine and ivermectin that could have stopped Covid in its tracks. We were told vaccines would be the game changer, but that hasn't happened.

On the contrary, mounting evidence shows Covid shots claim more lives than they save. The "pandemic of the unvaccinated" the establishment opinion cartel warned against is becoming a "pandemic of the vaccinated." The new narrative is that everyone has to get the jab in order to prevent the vaccinated from getting Covid, in defiance of both science and common sense.

Behind the Deception

Why were so many deceived, despite glaring problems in the narrative? In the opening article of this Special Report, mRNA-vaccine pioneer Dr. Robert Malone answers that question. He explains how fear can be used to beguile people into acquiescing and even supporting things they would otherwise oppose. He says that is what helped propel the now-crumbling Covid narrative.

The next article, by senior editor Alex Newman, zeros in on pandemic orchestrators and their goals. It is, in a very real sense, an old story: Those who wish to control others have always used fear and false pretenses to beguile people into supporting their power grab.

That is why we encourage you to read the two articles cited above as well as the rest of this Special Report. Despite the fact that Covid has taken a back seat in headlines, the pandemic serves as a textbook case of fear being used to stampede people into sacrificing freedom.

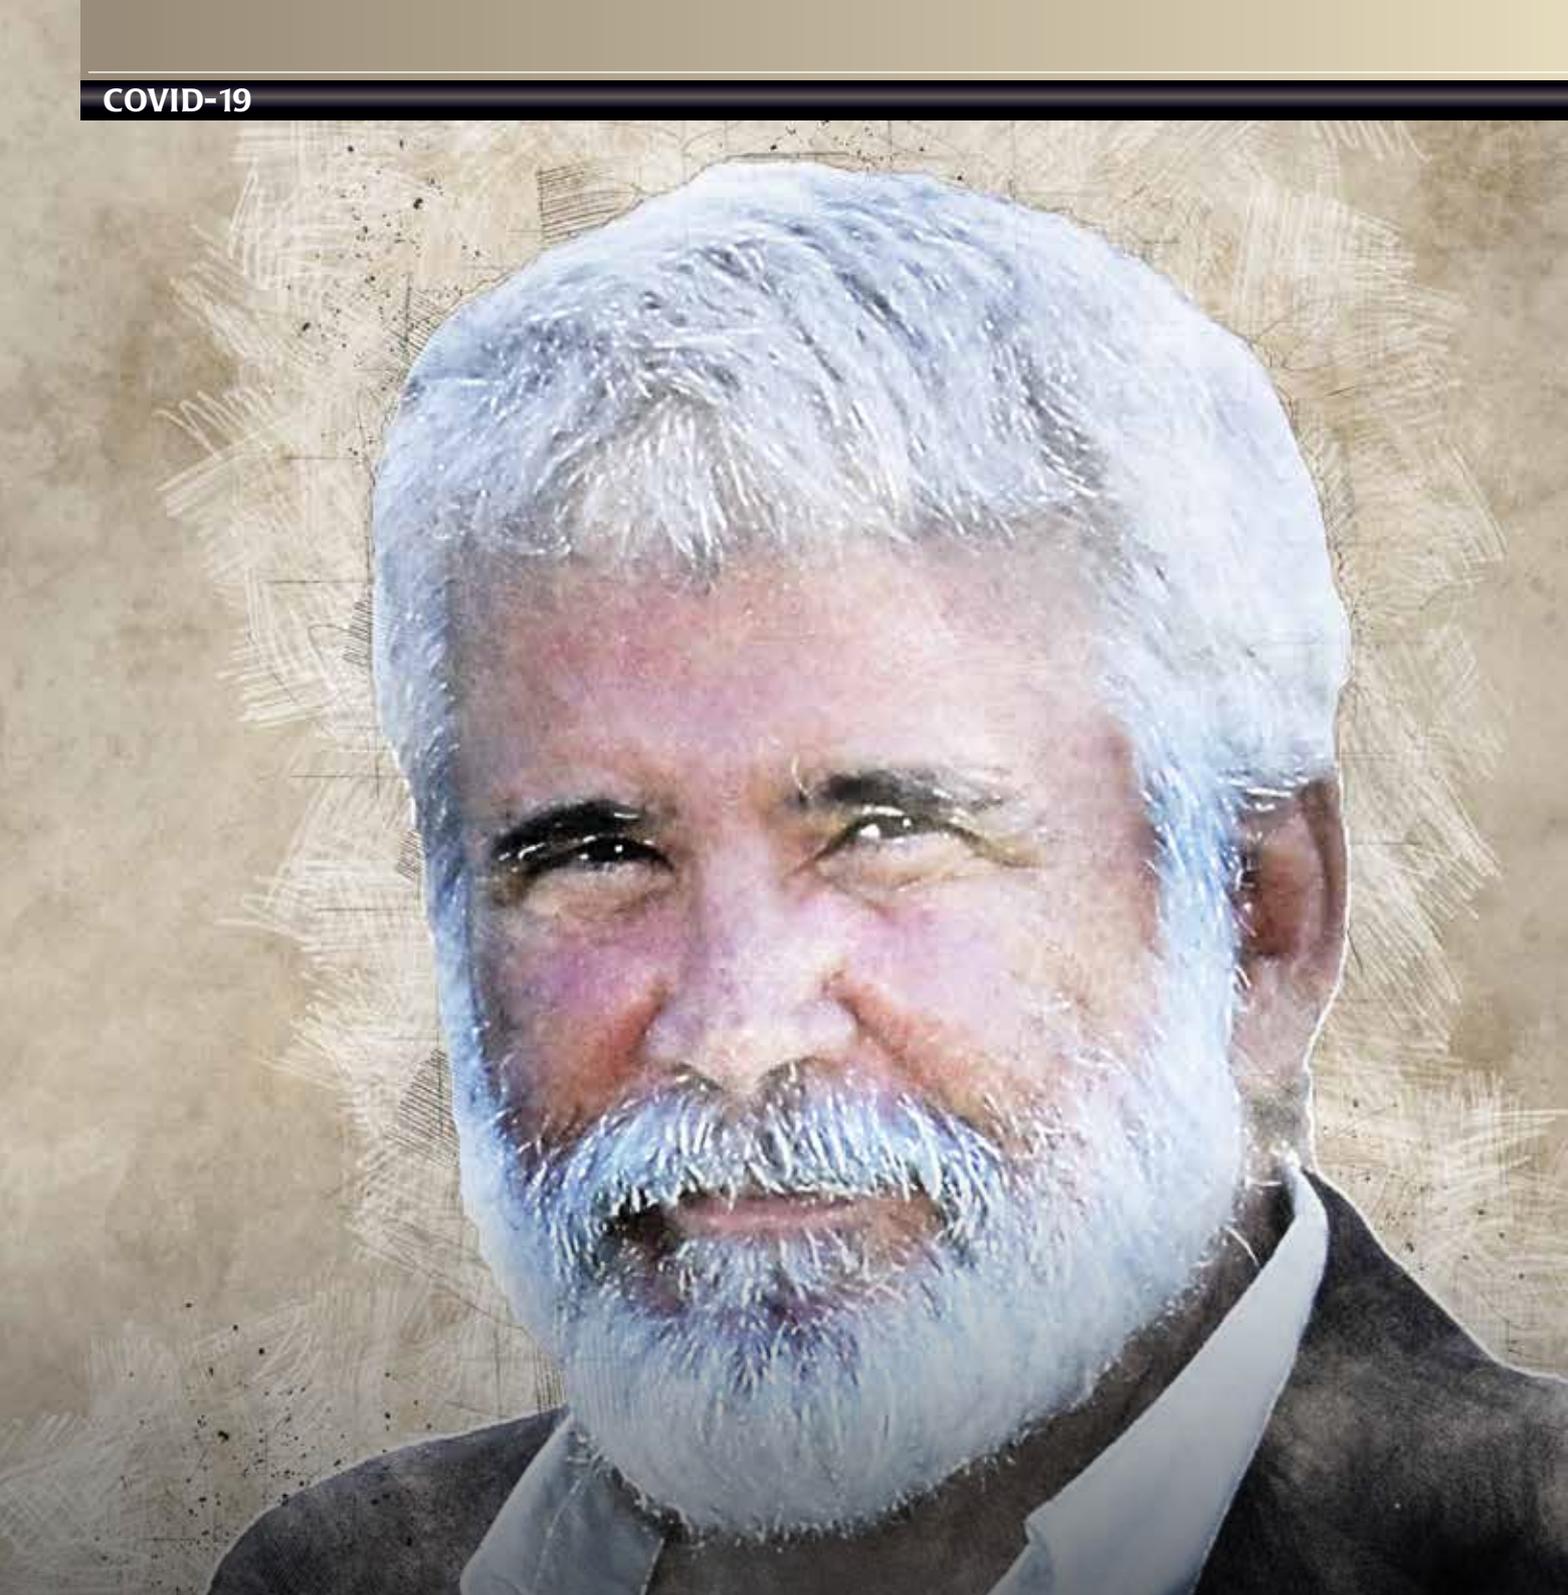

With the antidote of truth, people will not be so easily beguiled, and will recognize that, in medicine or any of society's ills, freedom is the cure.

WHY DID SO MANY FALL FOR THE COVID NARRATIVE?

A hidden global coup uses mass-formation psychosis, propaganda, and corporatism to promote its transhumanist agenda and the fourth industrial revolution.

by Robert W. Malone, M.D., M.S. and Jill Glasspool-Malone, Ph.D.

Dr. Robert Malone and his wife, Dr. Jill Glasspool-Malone, are experienced authors and biotechnology researchers who have gained an international following during the Covid pandemic by scientifically questioning the official narrative and making sense of its ensuing chaos. He pioneered mRNA vaccine technology in the late 1980s, and she specializes in biotech and immunology especially as regards public policy and federal regulatory issues. THE NEW AMERICAN is honored to print this cover-story article with the permission of Drs. Malone. It is adapted from an excerpt of their upcoming book Lies My Gov't Told Me, and the Better Future Coming, due for publication in June, and from the Substack "Who is Robert Malone."

— The Editors

Propagandists, governments, and the World Economic Forum (WEF) are using mass-formation psychology to sway large groups of people to act for the benefit of the propagandists' objectives. Although a major crisis — war, hyperinflation, or a public-health emergency, for example — can be extremely useful to a propagandist, these psychological tactics can be applied even without strong evidence of a crisis; the leader just has to be compelling enough.

One example involves the almost global acceptance of mask use over the past two years. Because National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases Director Dr. Anthony Fauci and his acolytes at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) insisted that masks work, public acceptance of a very intrusive element into people's lives was almost universal. Those who have become hypnotized by the mass-formation process either reject outright or dismiss as irrelevant ample data demonstrating the lack of effectiveness of masks for preventing the spread of the SARS-CoV-2 virus. People even accepted the illogic of masking children without question, despite clear and compelling evidence of harm.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, chief German propagandist for the Nazi Party, served as minister of propaganda from 1933 to 1945. A true master, he was arguably the creator of the concept that the State can control people by introducing propaganda into news, enabling it to manipulate entire populations. Goebbels' wicked brilliance exploited racism as a tool to promote German nationalism, thereby mobilizing and motivating Germany to engage in a globalized war for political, military, and economic dominance. Leaders and governments have studied his writings and speeches on propaganda ever since, much as the writings of Niccolò Machiavelli continue to be read as a cornerstone of modern interstate realpolitik. Examples of Goebbels' insights include the following:

Mask hysteria: Mass-formation psychosis explains why so many people have fallen for the idea that masks protect against the Covid virus, despite ample evidence to the contrary.

There was no point in seeking to convert the intellectuals. For intellectuals would never be converted and would anyway always yield to the stronger, and this will always be "the man in the street." Arguments must therefore be crude, clear and forcible, and appeal to emotions and instincts, not the intellect. Truth was unimportant and entirely subordinate to tactics and psychology.

If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it. The lie can be maintained only for such time as the state can shield the people from the political, economic, and/or military consequences of the lie. It thus becomes vitally important for The State to use all of its powers to repress dissent, for the truth is the mortal enemy of the lie, and thus by extension, the truth is the greatest enemy of The State.

Ghent University psychotherapist Dr. Mattias Desmet describes this as mass-formation psychosis, which Goebbels applied to practical politics within a nation-state. Many of Goebbels' contemporaries promoted the theory, which concerns the formation of a "mass" or crowd of people. Scholars including Gustave Le Bon, Sigmund Freud, William McDougall, and Elias Canetti were leading intellectual contributors to his thinking.

Le Bon was a French social psychologist who many acknowledge as founder of the study of crowd psychology. He defined a "crowd" as a group of individuals united by a common idea, belief, or ideology, and he believed that when an individual becomes part of a crowd, he undergoes a profound psychological transformation. The person ceases to think independently, instead relying on group synthesis of a set of simplified ideas. Once the group incorporates its ideas, individuals in the group cease to psychologically exist as independent minds. They are functionally hypnotized. Le Bon maintained that

When an individual becomes part of a crowd, he undergoes a profound psychological transformation. The person ceases to think independently, instead relying on group synthesis of a set of simplified ideas.

Master of indoctrination: Nazi Germany’s minister of propaganda, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, exploited news outlets to entrench racism, saying, “If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it.”

a group typically forms around an influential, unifying idea; this idea propels the group, or mass, toward a common goal. However, he also concluded that crowd members never create these influential ideas. Instead, a leader or set of leaders gives them to the crowd. Additionally, according to Le Bon, in order for an idea to unite and influence a crowd, it must first be dumbed down to a level that the entire crowd can easily understand.

For example, scientists could develop a new type of vaccine as a solution to a public-health crisis. The complex research and technology behind it may have required decades of effort, whereas the crowd as a whole would be incapable of comprehending such complexities. Therefore, the idea of vaccination as a solution to the crisis would need to be thoroughly simplified to enable socially engineered acceptance of it. Under the Le Bon model, the leader of the crowd — for instance, the president’s chief medical advisor, Dr. Anthony Fauci — distills the complicated concepts down to a simplified set of ideas that becomes the focus of a hypnotic, single-minded belief. The crowd accepts, incorporates, and acts upon those ideas as their own. One of the most important elements of this model is for the “trusted leader” to be truly accepted by the crowd. Once this is accomplished, it is almost impossible for the crowd to reject that leader, regardless of whether he or she lies.

Over the last two years, we have clear evidence that our government and that of Great Britain and many other Western nations have actively and successfully applied Le Bon’s lessons. Goebbels serves as a model for them, too. In the book Propaganda & Persuasion, historians Garth Jowett and Victoria O’Donnell wrote about Nazi propaganda principles based on Goebbels’ work and advice. Extracted from this work, they are:

- Avoid abstract ideas — appeal to the emotions.
- Constantly repeat just a few ideas. Use stereotyped phrases.
- Give only one side of the argument.
- Continuously criticize your opponents.
- Pick out one “enemy” for special vilification.

Unfortunately, governments worldwide well know how to apply these principles. They have joined with international bodies and large financial interests to produce harmonized propaganda through a wide variety of media outlets, including Big Tech, social media, and mainstream media. We have entered a new era of total thought control exerted on a global scale, often referred to as psychological operations, or psy-ops.

Let’s consider examples illustrating modern psy-ops in action, led by governments, nongovernmental organizations, and global forums such as the United Nations, the World Health Organization (WHO), and the World Economic Forum (WEF). Helpful illustrations include:

- Operation Mockingbird: Director of Central Intelligence Allen Dulles and Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) official Cord Meyer organized this propaganda campaign in the early 1950s. The CIA reportedly spent about $1 billion a year in today’s dollars hiring journalists from corporations such as CBS, The New York Times, ABC, NBC, Newsweek, Associated Press, and others to promote the intelligence agency’s viewpoints. The original operation reportedly involved some 3,000 CIA operatives and hired over 400 journalists. The domestic operation supposedly closed in 1976, but fewer than half of the media operatives were let go. Documentary evidence shows that much of Operation Mockingbird was offshored at that time. It is rumored that British Intelligence picked up many of the duties on behalf of the U.S. intelligence community.

Trusted News Initiative: Not so ironically, the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) leads the Trusted News Initiative (TNI), which actively censors eminent doctors, academics, and dissenting voices that contravene the official Covid-19 narrative. Anything contrary is labeled disinformation or misinformation and is deleted, suppressed, or de-platformed for not aligning with WHO and/or regional public-health authority-approved “truth.” In the case of the United States, that “truth” is established by Dr. Anthony Fauci, the CDC, and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). TNI uses advocacy journalism and journals to promote its causes. Moreover, a review of Hitler’s basic principles reveals that members of TNI are using them to control the public. TNI partners include Associated Press, Agence France-Presse, BBC, CBC/Radio-Canada, European Broadcasting Union, Facebook, Financial Times, First Draft, Google, The Hindu, Microsoft, The New York Times, Reuters, Reuters Institute for the Study of Journalism, Twitter, YouTube, The Wall Street Journal, and The Washington Post.

• World Economic Forum: WEF is a key think tank and meeting place for global capitalism management, and arguably qualifies as the leading global Deep State organization. Under the leadership of Professor Klaus Schwab, it has played an increasingly important role in coordinating the globalized hegemony of transnational capital and large corporations over Western democracies during the last three decades. Many of its members actively use Covid-19 as cover to carry out a “Great Reset” as described in Schwab’s writings. This Great Reset involves implementation of digital tracking and control of people, ushering in techno-feudalism, and the WEF objective of a fourth industrial revolution incorporating technologies collectively referred to as “transhumanism.” Western governments and WEF have identified genetic mRNA vaccines as a first step toward an inevitable transhuman society.

• Social-credit systems: China’s social-credit system is a combination of government and business surveillance that gives citizens a “score” that can restrict the ability of individuals or corporations to function by limiting purchases, property acquisition, or loans based on past behavior. How one uses the internet directly impacts the social-credit score. This is similar to the social-credit system evolving in the United States. Environmental, social, and governance (ESG) metrics are a type of credit system designed to coerce businesses — and, by extension, individuals and all of society — to transform their behaviors and thinking. Many U.S. government officials, trained in WEF’s Young Global Leaders program, are actively promoting this scoring system. Already, financial institutions such as PayPal and GoFundMe, as well as some mainstream banks, are deciding who can use their services based on what are essentially social-credit scores, as described by New York Times bestselling author Justin Haskins of The Heartland Institute.

• Young Global Leaders: YGL is a five-year WEF training program that hand-picks individuals most likely to succeed in politics or corporate governance, and as key influencers. WEF helps connect these graduates with leaders and capital to ensure that they rise in the ranks of national or international politics and/or corporate governance. The program’s agenda is secret, and it is very rare that a graduate will discuss it publicly. However, global corporatism and social engineering are main components of the program. YGL started in 1992 under a different name and has nearly 4,000 alumni. Those alumni are a “who’s who” of leaders and influencers in politics, Big Tech, media, the pharmaceutical industry, and finance. A small subset of U.S. graduates include:

• Politics and policy: White House coronavirus response coordinator Jeffrey Zients, lobby group #Masks4All co-founder Jeremy Howard, California Governor Gavin Newsom, 2020 presidential candidate and U.S. Secretary of Transportation Pete Buttigieg, Chelsea Clinton, Hillary Clinton confidante Huma Abedin, former U.S. ambassador to the UN Nikki Haley, former U.S. ambassador to the UN and USAID administrator Samantha Power, Eurasia Group founder Ian Bremmer, U.S.-British financier Bill Browder, Jonathan Soros (son of George Soros), Human Rights Watch director Kenneth Roth, economist Paul Krugman, former Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers, Black Lives Matter co-founder Alicia Garza, Ivanka Trump, and former U.S. Representative Tulsi Gabbard (D-Hawaii).

• Legacy media: CNN medical analyst

Leana Wen, CNN chief medical correspondent Sanjay Gupta, Twitter personality Eric Feigl-Ding, New York Times financial columnist Andrew Ross Sorkin, New York Times columnist Thomas Friedman, ABC News commentator George Stephanopoulos, Fox CEO and News Corp co-chair Lachlan Murdoch, Bloomberg columnist Justin Fox, and CNN commentator Anderson Cooper.

• Technology and social media: Microsoft founder Bill Gates, former Microsoft CEO Steven Ballmer, Amazon founder Jeff Bezos, Google co-founders Sergey Brin and Larry Page, Tesla and SpaceX founder Elon Musk, former Google CEO Eric Schmidt, Wikipedia co-founder Jimmy Wales, PayPal co-founder Peter Thiel, eBay co-founder Pierre Omidyar, Facebook founder and CEO Mark Zuckerberg, Facebook COO Sheryl Sandberg, Moderna CEO Stéphane Bancel, Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla, and Pfizer VP Vasudha Vats.

The agenda of WEF, its graduates, and its affiliates needs to be publicized. When the reader encounters people on this list, please remember that they have been trained by WEF. The allegiance of these graduates is not to the United States, but rather to corporatist globalism.

The Great Reset

Economist Peter Koenig is a geopolitical analyst with the Centre for Research on Globalization who explains on the group's website that the term "The Great Reset" is shorthand for a plan designed as the "antidote to 'democracy.'" He describes this plan, which the Rockefellers, the Gateses, WEF, and the Rothschilds are implementing, as the domination by a small minority of corporate globalists over a majority of the world's population.

The Great Reset involves using the global technocratic biosecurity state — otherwise known as the global public-health system — to implement these changes. The end result will mean extensive restrictions on the physical environment, forced digitization, and loss of bodily autonomy (having a say in your own health decisions). The Great Reset would be the total corporate takeover of all aspects of life, and its framers are using the cover of an overstated Covid public-health crisis to push through these measures.

"The Great Reset" was also the title of WEF's 50th annual meeting in June 2020. The event brought together high-profile business and political leaders, and was convened by Charles, Prince of Wales, with the theme of rebuilding society and the economy following the Covid-19 pandemic. Their goals reveal a less-flattering description. The Great Reset would be "capitalism with Chinese characteristics": a "two-tiered economy, with profitable monopolies and the state on top, and socialism for the majority below."

With these basic terms in our toolbox, let's return to the central topic. In the coordinated propaganda and censorship response to the Covid-19 public-health crisis, globalists and corporatists are directly incorporating Hitler's own principles for crowd control. If we look closer, we can clearly see coordinated actions by the BBC-led Trusted News Initiative, various scientific technological elites, large financial groups (such as Vanguard, BlackRock, and State Street), and WEF acting in real time to suppress a growing awareness by the general public of having been actively manipulated. It is increasingly becoming clear that these organizations and aligned nation-states have been using crowd psychology tools to generate significant fear and anxiety over Covid-19 to advance their Great Reset on a global scale.

Multiple governments have now admitted to actively using fear and "mass formation"-related theories as a tool for totalitarian population control during the pandemic. One glaring example has been operating in the U.K., described by Gordon Rayner in The Telegraph on May 14, 2021:

Scientists on a committee that encouraged the use of fear to control people's behavior during the Covid pandemic have admitted its work was "unethical" and "totalitarian."

SPI-B [Scientific Pandemic Influenza Group on Behavior] warned in March [2020] that ministers needed to increase "the perceived level of personal threat" from Covid-19 because "a substantial number of people still do not feel sufficiently personally threatened."

Gavin Morgan, a psychologist on the team, said: "Clearly, using fear as a means of control is not ethical. Using fear smacks of totalitarianism. It's not an ethical stance for any modern government. By nature I am an optimistic person, but all this has given me a more pessimistic view of people."

AP Images

Funding fear: Leading globalist power broker Bill Gates is behind many facets of the Great Reset, such as contact tracing, digital IDs, implantable microchips, and global depopulation.

Waking up: This photo shows a line of people in the background waiting to be tested for Covid-19 in Miami last December. Notice there is no line, no waiting near signs for the jab.

This is occurring at the same time that the omicron variant is destroying the legitimacy of government and WHO propaganda concerning the “safe and effective” mRNA vaccines and associated mandates. Why the obsession with vaccination? One explanation is that vaccine passports promote a key WEF objective: a digital identity-based social-credit system that will weaponize banking, restricting access to funds based on behavior and speech. The core hypothesis here is that Western democratic governments, which in normal times operate under personal-privacy constraints, can leverage the emergency to mandate digital identity and proof of vaccinations with QR codes or smartphone-based contact tracing in the supposed interest of public health. This, despite the proven fact that mRNA SARS-CoV-2 vaccines not only do not stop viral infection, replication, or transmission, but may even increase infection risk. The logic apparently is that Western nations, which are increasingly behaving like WEF-infiltrated client states, can both economically and politically benefit by implementing a universal social-credit system akin to that which has been pioneered and gradually implemented in the People’s Republic of China (PRC) by its Central Communist Party.

Thanks to WEF-trained Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and WEF-trained Canadian Finance Director Chrystia Freeland, we have a foreshadowing about potential blowback issues with the whole “manipulate people to do what you want using social-credit scores and weaponizing access to banking” strategy. It turns out that Trudeau and Freeland were supposed to be the tip of the spear for piloting the WEF digital ID system, as explained by Neil Parmenter, president and CEO of the Canadian Bankers Association, in a recent CBA video advertisement. Faced with the threat of peaceful truckers occupying Ottawa, they decided to go all the way and weaponize the banking system to meet the “enormous threat” to Canadian national security posed by the truckers. That did not turn out quite as planned, as reported by the Independent Institute. When those holding both large and small bank accounts realized that Toronto-Dominion and other large Canadian banks were no longer a safe harbor, they decided to withdraw their funds.

Apparently Freeland, although proudly listed as an exemplar YGL graduate, was not trained as an economist. Rather her background is in Russian history and literature, and she once worked in Russia for the Financial Times. Freeland and her fellow YGL alumni apparently never learned that members of the working class do not enjoy the threat of having their money stolen or frozen by government bureaucrats on a political crusade.

When the geniuses at the WEF meet to game out the “lessons learned” from Trudeau and Freeland’s short, sharp shock, what are they going to conclude? They will probably decide that the fault lies in having moved too fast, and that the overlords should have told their apparatchiks to stick to a slow, incrementalist strategy.

The fallback of the WEF globalists running totalitarian Canada will be to “build back better” in part by seeking to develop a cashless society, one that involves a 100-percent digitized currency tied to a digital ID, and a social-credit system that is bulletproof from the power of the people and their money. If WEF has its way, it is only a matter of time before this concept envelops the world.

We have a fight on our hands to take back control of our country. This is not going to be an easy battle, and it is one in which we all have a part to play. The first item of business is to expose the WEF for what it is, along with its graduates, acolytes, and camp followers. Then we must make sure that these people do not hold office or leadership positions until they clarify where their loyalty lies — their country or their global allegiances. We must not cede our fundamental right of privacy, guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution. That means no digital passports for vaccination or otherwise; no government tracking of our movements, tied to said passports; and no social-credit scores.

The silver lining in this whole mess is that the YGL program seems more interested in turning out compliant bureaucrat functionaries than razor-sharp, highly trained intellectuals. Justin Trudeau and Chrystia Freeland certainly fit that mold. Let’s give thanks that they have alerted us to where Klaus and his WEF minions want to quietly take us. Now, if you care about your freedom and the autonomy of your nation, it is time to act, or forever hold your peace. There is no medical emergency. It is time for Congress to shut down the illegal suspension of constitutionally protected rights using a fraudulent justification, and let those of us who actually work for a living — such as physicians, farmers, and truckers — get back to work. ■

Nonessential: Small businesses and churches were deemed nonessential and shut down, while Deep State-connected megacorporations such as Walmart, abortion clinics, and liquor stores were “essential.”

by Alex Newman

Governments worldwide seem to be retreating from the lawlessness and tyranny unleashed under the guise of fighting Covid-19. But looks can be deceiving.

This is almost certainly “two steps forward, one step back” in the face of massive public resistance, rather than a genuine acknowledgment of error. Covid has already helped the Deep State — the invisible government behind the scenes — accomplish or advance multiple key objectives. The infrastructure laid down during “pan-demical” hysteria, much of which is still in place, can and likely will be re-activated to deal with the next supposed crisis.

If the Deep State gets its way, the biomedical police-state nightmare is only just beginning. Already establishment bigwigs warn that Covid was simply the warmup and that much-deadlier pandemics will soon hit humanity. The architecture of tyranny rolled out during the pandemic — vaccine passports, medicine at gunpoint, censorship, endless propaganda, lockdowns, arrests of pastors, shuttering churches, forced masking, destruction of the middle class, and more — will come roaring back with a vengeance.

Not only did the tyrannical Covid countermeasures prove devastating to public health, they shattered the economy and stifled whistleblowing experts in unprecedented ways. The feature articles of this special Covid issue of THE NEW AMERICAN detail these crimes. Here, we discuss how they shed light on Deep State plans for the future.

Economic Tyranny

Perhaps the greatest advances in the Deep State agenda took place in the economic realm. From demolishing independent businesses and the value of the dollar to waging war on cash and the market system itself, Covid has been the greatest boon to economic totalitarians in American history aside from the world wars. Endless bailouts and relief bills transformed Americans into wards of the state.

Global lockdowns crushed small businesses and the independent middle class while centralizing power in the hands of government and megacorporations. Insiders exploited the economic chaos to unleash unprecedented government spending and currency creation, moving away from the free market toward fascism, or what World Economic Forum (WEF) founder Klaus Schwab and the Rothschild banking dynasty deceptively refer to as “stakeholder capitalism.”

God-given rights came under unprecedented assault. Decrees from mayors and governors suddenly stripped us of the right to have a job, go outside, visit friends, open businesses, go shopping, worship God, or eat out. Propagandists claimed it was murder to go out for other than state-sanctioned reasons. They deemed churches and small businesses nonessential, while “Black Lives Matter” riots continued unabated, and abortion clinics, liquor stores, and marijuana shops remained open.

These policies forced permanent closure on millions of “nonessential” small businesses, according to data from Yelp. Meanwhile, “essential” megacorporations (e.g., Walmart, Amazon, Pfizer, and other “woke” companies) saw record profits and massive share-price gains as government ruthlessly eliminated their competitors to “fight Covid.”

Amid economic carnage, the Deep State demanded massive taxpayer-funded stimulus programs. “The stimulus package that just passed is the biggest wealth transfer from common folks to the super-rich (Wall Street and bankers) in the history of mankind,” warned Congressman Thomas Massie (R-Ky.) at the time. “Done in the name of a virus with $1,200 checks as the cheese in the trap.” On March 3, he reminded Americans that the $7 trillion in “stimulus” to businesses and government agencies represented a $53,000 tax per household.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and congressional Deep State toadies such as then-Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky peddled the notion that the trillions in unconstitutional federal spending were a “Marshall Plan” to rescue America. That plan coerced World War II-decimated European nations into surrendering sovereignty to a regional government now known as the European Union.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve showed trillions in “Covid relief” on its cronies. As this writer warned in the April 20, 2020 “Freedom Is the Cure” special issue of THE NEW AMERICAN, that currency creation led to the now-plummeting purchasing power of the U.S. dollar. It is a massive looting operation transferring wealth from the poor and middle class to the Deep State.

The very nature of business is under attack amid a push for “stakeholder capitalism.” Think of it as fascism with new marketing: an inexplicable shift away from focus on customers and shareholder value toward “Environmental, Social, and Governance” (ESG) metrics. Deep State interests such as BlackRock, a WEF “strategic partner” led by Council on Foreign Relations member Larry Fink, pushed the change by weaponizing its $10 trillion financial empire.

The Deep State also advanced its global-currency agenda. For generations, globalist operatives have been scheming to create a fiat currency to fund “global governance.” Covid provided the perfect excuse, with the International Monetary Fund showering unprecedented amounts of its proto-global fiat currency known as Special Drawing Rights on governments.

Medical Tyranny

Healthcare decisions, traditionally regarded as sacrosanct and supposedly protected by federal privacy laws, were surrendered to medical tyranny that would have been unthinkable three years ago. Vaccine mandates, forced masking, and silencing all dissent have become the new normal.

Early in his administration, Biden announced unprecedented federal mandates. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) intended to require millions of U.S. employers to force injections or weekly Covid testing on their workers. Another decree, issued by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), forced the injection on more than 17 million workers at taxpayer-funded facilities. Biden also pushed the jab on all federal employees, contractors, and military service members. These mandates affected more than 70 percent of working Americans.

Though the U.S. Supreme Court struck down OSHA’s edict as unconstitutional, countless coerced workers got the shot, and OSHA has promised a revised order that may survive the Supreme Court. Regardless, numerous state governments have implemented similar orders, even as many government schools have forced the experimental shots on children, who are at virtually zero risk from Covid.

The Orwellian push to vaccinate every American included one of history’s most ruthless campaigns of demonization against a domestic population. Even the U.S. president parroted the lie that Covid was “a pandemic of the unvaccinated” who were selfishly endangering others. “You’re not going to get Covid if you have these vaccinations,” Biden falsely claimed last July.

Government at all levels also decreed that people cover their faces with unsanitary masks. Federal “guidelines” and state orders enforced cruel “social distancing” policies, even on children. Churches across the country were shut down; some pastors were arrested and persecuted.

Overkill: Dangerous medical tyranny unprecedented in U.S. history, all backed by the Deep State, was unleashed on the American people under the guise of fighting Covid.

Government bribed hospitals with huge tax-funded bonuses and bullied them into using dangerous treatment protocols. World Health Organization (WHO) and National Institutes of Health research proves the popular protocol drug remdesivir is 20 times more toxic than other antivirals and devoid of clinical benefits. Multiple doctors have told THE NEW AMERICAN this drug has killed large numbers who are falsely counted as Covid deaths. Meanwhile, effective treatments are ridiculed as doctors and pharmacists are threatened and persecuted.

Additionally, censorship by Deep State-controlled Big Tech has exploded, following the template laid out in “exercises” such as “Event 201,” backed by WEF and the Gates Foundation. In an early 2020 CNN interview, YouTube CEO Susan Wojcicki pledged her outlet to remove content that contradicts WHO’s supposedly infallible pronouncements.

Facebook is equally guilty, even censoring President Donald Trump for posting in October 2020 that the flu is more lethal than Covid, basing his claim on data suggesting Americans had been deceived on the issue. Even medical doctors were persecuted and threatened, with at least one being forced into psychiatric examination for questioning the narrative.

As the federal government’s propaganda campaign imploded despite this ruthless censorship and de-platforming, the flailing Biden administration issued a “National Terrorism Advisory System” bulletin in February painting skeptics of the medical tyranny as a terror threat. “False or misleading narratives and conspiracy theories, and other forms of misdis- and mal-information (MDM)” regarding Covid-19 and election fraud represents a terrorist threat to the “Homeland.” The bulletin provided no actual examples.

Canada witnessed even more outrageous abuses. When a harried public peacefully resisted mandates with the truckers’ Freedom Convoy, the regime of Prime Minister Justin Trudeau savagely suppressed it, using mounted police to trample activists in the streets. Trudeau used emergency powers to freeze protesters’ bank accounts as if they were terrorists, highlighting the dangers of the “cashless society” advanced by elites amid Covid.

Insiders exploited the economic chaos to unleash unprecedented government spending and currency creation, moving away from the free market toward fascism, or what World Economic Forum founder Klaus Schwab and the Rothschild banking dynasty deceptively refer to as “stakeholder capitalism.”

Deep State money man: Microsoft founder and population-control fanatic Bill Gates showered money on everything from the World Health Organization to the propagandists and fearmongers peddling the Deep State narrative.

Total Surveillance Tyranny

Totalitarians have always viewed surveillance and control of movement as critical to their tyranny. In the past two years, Deep State tyrants have made the most significant advances on that front in human history: “contact tracing,” digital IDs, vaccine passports, and a war on cash leading to an eventual “cashless society.”

Contact tracing, where government tracks people using technology such as smartphones under the guise of tracking Covid exposure, became commonplace. The U.S. Congress even considered legislation (H.R. 6666) to spend $100 billion to hire an army of contact tracers. Numerous states launched contact-tracing schemes, too. In Washington State, the governor employed the National Guard.

Many other states, both red and blue, teamed up with the far-left “Partners in Health” for contact tracing. The outfit’s partners include the Gates Foundation, Microsoft, Facebook, WHO, the Clinton Foundation, George Soros’s Open Society Foundations, Big Oil, Big Pharma, and numerous other Deep State players. Chelsea Clinton serves on its board of trustees.

WHO, which set standards for smartphone tracking apps, publicly called for contact tracing to separate individuals from their own homes and families. “In some senses, transmission has been pushed off the streets, and pushed back into family units,” said WHO “emergencies” boss Michael Ryan. “Now, we need to go and look in families to find those people who may be sick, and remove them and isolate them in a safe and dignified manner.”

In many places, from California to China, this has happened and continues to happen. In Ventura County, California, the health chief announced in late 2020 that government would remove the Covid-infected from homes that could not maintain separate bathrooms for them. And in Hong Kong, authorities took an 11-month-old baby from her parents after she tested positive for Covid in early 2022, according to The Wall Street Journal.

The vaccine passport proved to be another powerful surveillance and control mechanism. National and local governments worldwide began requiring them for virtually everything. In some jurisdictions, including the once liberty-minded Hong Kong, even grocery shopping now requires a vaccine passport.

Media pretends the passports are on their way out, but the reality is far different. Every Canadian province and almost half of American states are deploying Microsoft-backed “SMART Health Card” technology. It will provide every individual with a smartphone QR code showing ID and vaccine status — for now. Oklahoma, South Carolina, Mississippi, West Virginia, and Utah have adopted the scheme. So have governments across Asia, Africa, and the Caribbean.

Bigwigs behind the effort such as Dr. Brian Anderson, co-founder of the Vaccine Credentialing Initiative and chief digital-health physician at Deep State outfit MITRE Corporation, celebrated the shift toward “a coordinated international approach.” The Council on Foreign Relations has been promoting an international standard for many months, too.

WHO has been working on providing global technical standards for a global vaccine-passport system. Politico reported on February 24 that WHO was convening member states to develop a “trust framework” for a global vaccine-credential regime harmonizing and making compatible the various vaccine-passport schemes from around the world.

Deep State organizations behind the Covid tyranny peddled the concept long before the pandemic. In 2015, Microsoft and other Gates operations teamed up with the Rockefeller Foundation on ID2020.org. The plan: give everyone on Earth a “digital identity” from birth to death, tracking health and vaccine information.

Some Gates-funded vaccine status-tracking schemes are even more terrifying. For instance, the Gates Foundation sponsored research at MIT to develop tattoos invisible to the naked eye but scannable with smartphones. “The patch can be customized to imprint different patterns that correspond to the type of vaccine delivered,” MIT boasted in a press release announcing the technology just weeks before the Covid outbreak started to dominate the news cycle.

The next big leap may be into implantable vaccine passports. In fact, thousands of Swedes have already inserted such microchips under their skin. In 2020, then-Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu proposed microchipping every child in Israel to supposedly guard them from Covid.

Pundits also push the technology as a convenient replacement for credit cards and cash, making the implants an obvious tool in the push for a cashless society. This longtime objective of the Deep State went into overdrive during the pandemic. In Congress, Democrats repeatedly introduced legislation to give Americans “stimulus” payments in the form of “digital dollars” held in “digital wallets” created by the Federal Reserve. Many businesses even stopped taking cash altogether.

With Communist China in the lead, central banks worldwide accelerated the coordinated push for what they call “Central Bank Digital Currency” (CBDC). Some of the world’s most powerful organizations, governments, and institutions — including the UN — have been promoting the “Better Than Cash” agenda since at least 2012. Numerous governments around the globe have eagerly joined the movement to phase out cash, along with the privacy and freedom it protects, as soon as possible.

The Great Reset and Tech Tyranny

The assaults on freedom, national sovereignty, privacy, and the middle class fit neatly with WEF’s “Great Reset” agenda, announced at its 50th anniversary meeting in 2020. WEF boss Schwab touted the scheme alongside socialist UN chief António Guterres, IMF director Kristalina Georgieva, Prince Charles, and other globalist bigwigs. Everything — including you — must be radically transformed, they believe. Schwab has been working on the vision for decades; Covid was the perfect pretext.

In his July 2020 book COVID-19: The Great Reset, Schwab said the pandemic offers an “unprecedented opportunity” that should be “seized” to “reimagine our world.” The last five centuries, the book explains, prove that “acute crises contribute to boosting the power of the state.” There is no reason the Covid crisis should differ, it continued. “Every country, from

THE DEEP STATE'S "CRYSTAL BALL"

The Deep State planned in advance much of Covid's assault on freedom. Mounting proof indicates that SARS-CoV-2 was lab-engineered, while evidence also shows years of preparations to unleash terror. Documents from key organizations reveal plans by top government and business leaders to exploit a virus in their war against the middle class.

In 2010, the Rockefeller Foundation released "Scenarios for the Future of Technology and International Development." In the "Lock Step" scenario, a pandemic breaks out, and tyranny is used to fight it — with citizens demanding "top-down direction and oversight." Policies envisioned include "mandatory wearing of face masks," "biometric ID for all citizens," "tighter regulation of key industries," "body-temperature checks at the entries to communal spaces," and "a suite of new regulations and agreements." The document portrays ruthless communist tyranny as the most effective panacea. Most alarming is the conclusion that controls should remain after the emergency fades.

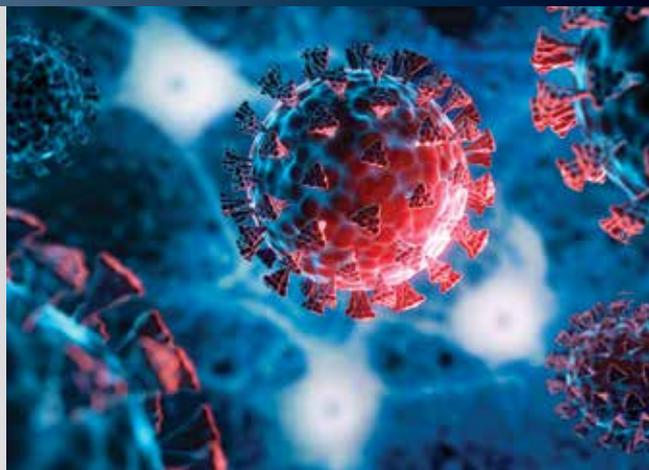

Ten years later, Deep State bigwigs such as Bill Gates and Klaus Schwab praised Beijing's barbaric Covid measures while blasting the West for its attachment to individual liberty.

In late 2019, weeks before Covid-19 emerged, the globalist World Economic Forum (WEF) and the Gates Foundation sponsored "Event 201" at the Bloomberg School of Public Health. The exercise involved a hypothetical novel Chinese coronavirus that required a globally coordinated "health" policy, including censorship of "misinformation," global lockdowns, massive economic disruptions, total surveillance, and flooding the world with "authoritative" propaganda. A few months later it happened.

In 2018, WEF sponsored a similar exercise at Johns Hopkins dubbed "CLADE X." One year prior, the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security released "SPARS Pandemic, 2025-2028: A Futuristic Scenario for Public Health Risk Communicators." The exercise imagined a "St. Paul Acute Respiratory Syndrome Coronavirus" (SPARS-CoV) spread from Asia that infected Americans. In eerie foreshadowing, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the World Health Organization (WHO) massively inflated the fatality rate from less than 0.6 to almost five percent.

"Conspiracy theories also proliferated across social media, suggesting that the virus had been purposely created and introduced to the population by drug companies or that it had escaped from a government lab secretly testing bioweapons," the document reads. CDC and the Food and Drug Administration worked with "social media experts" to stifle dissent and peddle the government narrative.

A government-backed experimental vaccine was introduced. Though it had serious short-term and possible long-term side effects, the government agreed to protect vaccine manufacturers from liability and lawsuits. A year and many nasty side effects later, government was forced to compensate victims to appease public rage.

peterschreiber.media/iStock/GettyImagesPlus

Key Deep State players involved in these exercises (e.g., WEF and the Gates Foundation) helped pump out terrorizing propaganda during the Covid pandemic. Gates-funded Professor Neil Ferguson of Imperial College London ludicrously predicted millions of U.S. Covid deaths if governments did not immediately coordinate to smash freedom. Gates-funded media outlets endlessly hyped the fearmongering.

Evidence indicates that the U.S. government contributed to the Wuhan laboratory fiasco. National Institutes of Health (NIH) boss Francis Collins, who claimed "no control" over the lab despite showering tax dollars on it, inked a deal with the Communist Party-controlled Natural Science Foundation of China. The NSFC also funded Wuhan research on bat coronaviruses.

Eventually, media admitted the virus' origin once it became impossible to hide. Nevertheless, Deep State orchestrators exploited the pandemic to run roughshod over humanity. With the exception of major wars, it is hard to posit another example of their advance toward the ultimate goal — a technocratic, liberty-barren "New World Order" — so swiftly.

Leading globalists rejoiced. Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger wrote an April 2020 Wall Street Journal editorial titled "The Coronavirus Pandemic Will Forever Alter the World Order." He touted attacks on freedom (i.e., lockdowns, mandates, and quarantines) as "necessary public-health measures," and recommended "principles of the liberal world order" to save humanity from Covid.

"Leaders are dealing with the crisis on a largely national basis, but the virus's society-dissolving effects do not recognize borders," he wrote. "No country, not even the U.S., can in a purely national effort overcome the virus. Addressing the necessities of the moment must ultimately be coupled with a global collaborative vision and program."

That is exactly what happened: tyranny coordinated at the international level, imposed by every government worldwide. WHO guided policy decisions with the full support of Deep State power brokers. ■

the United States to China, must participate, and every industry, from oil and gas to tech, must be transformed,” Schwab said, calling for a “new social contract” and “entirely new foundations for our economic and social systems.”

Author and retired NYU Professor Michael Rectenwald said the Great Reset, at least on the economic front, could be described as a move toward “capitalism with Chinese characteristics”— “a two-tiered economy, with profitable monopolies and the state on top and socialism for the majority below.” He is right. Schwab, like other Deep State operatives, is a great admirer of Chinese dictator Xi Jinping and his murderous regime.

“The Great Reset represents the development of the Chinese system in the West, but in reverse,” Rectenwald wrote recently in Imprimis. “Whereas the Chinese political class began with a socialist political system and then introduced privately held for-profit production, the West began with capitalism and is now implementing a Chinese-style political system. This Chinese-style system includes vastly increased state intervention in the economy, on the one hand, and on the other, the kind of authoritarian measures that the Chinese government uses to control its population.”

Another key element of the Great Reset is what Schwab has described as the “Fourth Industrial Revolution,” a concept openly embraced by Joe Biden and Russian President Vladimir Putin alike. Schwab, the main frontman for the agenda, has summarized it concisely as “a fusion of our physical, digital and biological identity.” In other words, human beings will increasingly be merged with technology — a movement known as “transhumanism.”

“Today’s external devices — from wearable computers to virtual reality headsets — will almost certainly become implantable in our bodies and brains,” Schwab wrote in his book The Fourth Industrial Revolution. He regularly speaks in media interviews and conferences about microchips implanted in the brain that will be able to read one’s thoughts and communicate with the digital world. And at some point, he expects the state to mandate it under the guise of ensuring “security.”

“COVID19, if anything, has accelerated this industrial revolution,” Schwab said in a video broadcast at a recent Chinese event. “If COVID had happened even 10 years ago, we could not have imagined entire companies, schools, and government offices so fast online. Today, that is a reality. The Fourth Industrial Revolution has become a reality, not just for the pioneers but for a broad range of people and workers.”

However, the Great Reset is broader than mere cyborg transformation. WEF has disgorged endless propaganda promoting a world free of private property, meat consumption, carbon-dioxide emissions, and other alleged evils. WEF is also partnering with the United Nations to implement its Agenda 2030 and other “sustainability” schemes. “The world as we knew it in the early months of 2020 is no more, dissolved in the context of the pandemic,” Schwab explained.

These are not idle threats. If anyone has the means to accomplish such a dramatic global transformation, it is Schwab and the Deep State cabal he represents. Indeed, Schwab openly brags that he has “penetrated” governments all over the world to bring about his vision, training up totalitarian-minded “young global leaders” ranging from Vladimir Putin in Russia to Justin Trudeau in Canada.

Submit or Resist?

The Covid madness appears to be fading somewhat in light of the Ukraine-Russia war and major pushback from citizens. But it is far from over. Globalist billionaire Gates, a key player in pandemic policy, has already stated that the “next” pandemic may be far more serious. His new book, expected in May, purports to teach humanity how to “avoid the next pandemic.” Spoiler alert: Tyranny and globalism.

“If every country does what Australia did [impose some of the most draconian measures in human history], then you wouldn’t be calling [the next outbreak] a pandemic,” Gates declared at the annual Munich Security Conference in January. Schwab has made similar comments about the alleged difficulty that liberty poses during pandemics.

Gates, a member of a secretive organization of billionaire population-control fanatics known as the “Good Club,” is open about his goal of using vaccines to reduce world population, claiming that people would have fewer children if their offspring were less susceptible to viral disease. But throughout the pandemic, numerous voices celebrated the virus’ apparent increased lethality among older, more conservative voters, who are more likely to resist “climate” action and other globalist policies. There is plenty of evidence

peterschreiber.media/Stock/GettyimagesPlus

Government on your mind: Deep State bigwigs behind the Covid narrative, such as Klaus Schwab of the World Economic Forum, are peddling a merger of biological people with technology, including brain implants, as part of the Great Reset.

to suggest that Gates is far less interested in saving human lives than he would like people to believe.

Whether the Deep State-engineered changes brought about by Covid will ever subside remains unclear. The 2010 Rockefeller report “Scenarios for the Future of Technology and International Development” includes a cryptic suggestion that the answer is no. In one scenario with eerie overtones of the Covid pandemic, the report conceptualized: “Even after the pandemic faded, this more authoritarian control and oversight of citizens and their activities stuck and even intensified.” Is it any wonder that so many tyrannical measures remain in place as the pandemic fades? Children particularly have been conditioned to believe this sort of tyranny is normal and even desirable.

Clearly, the Deep State gained major ground. But public resistance played a major role in stifling it. When asked by CNN why the quarantine period had been reduced from 10 days to five, CDC boss Rochelle Walensky said it “really had a lot to do with what we thought people would be able to tolerate.” In other words, the power-mad bureaucrats and the Deep State swamp monsters behind them recognized that if they pushed too far, the whole scheme might fail.

Throughout the pandemic, the importance of federalism and local politics also became more evident than at any time in modern history. Florida led the way in protecting the rights of citizens in defiance of the Deep State. In the jurisdiction where this writer resides, for example, there was never a city, county, or state mask mandate. In other parts of America, all three were in place, in addition to a wild array of tyrannical measures ranging from curfews and lockdowns to vaccine passports.

“If you are trying to restrict people and impose mandates; if you are trying to lock people down; I am standing in your way and standing for the rights of the people in Florida,” Governor Ron DeSantis said in a press conference in response to Biden telling governors to “get out of the way” if they would not impose mandates. “If you are coming after the rights of parents in Florida, I’m standing in your way — and not letting you get away with it.”

Even some liberals have started awakening to the danger. Former Clinton advisor Naomi Wolf, a longtime Democrat, sounded the alarm over lockdowns and other Covid-inspired tyranny, warning that the United States was undergoing a “coup” on its way to becoming a “police state” in which the Constitution would be shredded. “That transcends everything that you and I might disagree or agree on,” Wolf told Fox News. “I really hope we wake up quickly because history also shows that it’s a small window in which people can fight back before it is too dangerous to fight back.”

The Deep State achieved some major victories amid the pandemic. But the largely invisible government behind the scenes also revealed its hand to more people than ever before, sparking an unprecedented public awakening and overwhelming global resistance. Americans can resist successfully, but it will take education, hard work, organization, and dedication. With everything good under threat, there is no other choice. ■

The Jab Jinx

As Big Brother, Big Pharma, and Big Tech scheme to put a needle in every arm, Americans realize this syringe is mightier than a sword.

by Rebecca Terrell

What happened to Covid-19? Only weeks ago the U.S. Supreme Court sold out healthcare workers nationwide with a federal vaccine mandate in defiance of sacred medical autonomy. Now, SARS-CoV-2 and its endless variants barely make headlines. Google Trends data reveals search interest for the keyword “covid” nosedived since January, just as “Ukraine” went viral.

The pandemic still stings those injured by Covid vaccines. The family of a young man in Louisiana is mourning his untimely death, which doctors attribute to the jab. Brandon Pollet, age 33, developed a fatal autoimmune disease shortly after receiving his second Pfizer dose last August and passed away on January 28. He leaves behind his wife, Jessica, and their one-year-old daughter.

When his young widow recounted their tragedy on Facebook, the social-media giant deleted her message, claiming it violated their standards on misinformation. “I see why people don’t hear others stories,” Jessica wrote. “Facebook makes it incredibly hard to share.” The platform now attaches a “Get Vaccine Info” link to each of her posts, with the heartless claim that Covid jabs are safe and effective.

A doctor told her that Brandon, who enjoyed perfect health prior to the jab, was the fourth Covid-vaccine induced case of a rare autoimmune disorder known as HLH that he has personally witnessed in the past year. Jessica shared her experience with an HLH support group, and others relayed similar stories about their loved one’s post-vaccine injuries.

She also reported Brandon’s death to the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS), a program jointly managed by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The agencies use it to identify early warning signals regarding vaccine safety.

Body Count

Brandon’s is one of more than 25,000 Covid vaccine-related deaths tallied by mid-March. That’s nearly three times the number of deaths than those attributed to all other vaccines combined since VAERS began recording in 1990. Based on FDA’s track record of post-market vaccine surveillance, this red flag should have stripped Covid jabs of emergency use authorization (EUA). Moreover, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) admits, “fewer than 1% of vaccine adverse events are reported” to the voluntary VAERS system, according to the agency’s Lazarus Report. That means Covid vaccines may have claimed more than 2.4 million lives in 15 months; other reported adverse effects totaling nearly 1.2 million would equate to around 120 million.

Nothing to see here, say pundits. “Reactions to both [Pfizer and Moderna] mRNA vaccines are generally mild and subside after one or two days,” CDC official Tom Shimabukuro told USA Today. He helped

Even The New York Times admitted in February that the “CDC isn’t publishing large portions of the Covid data it collects,” withholding crucial information on boosters, hospitalizations, and even wastewater analysis.

facebook/kylewarner

No exemption: The Pfizer vaccine cut short the career of professional mountain bike racer Kyle Warner. Regardless, his doctor refuses to write a medical exemption for boosters for fear of losing her medical license.

author a March 2022 study published in The Lancet analyzing the first six months’ worth of VAERS data that suggest “92.1% of negative side effects were not serious.”

“A severe event ratio (including death) of 7.9% ... is high — very high!” writes mRNA vaccine pioneer Dr. Robert Malone on his blog. However, that estimate is dramatically low, as an analysis at AmericasFrontlineDoctors.org reveals. CDC counted each jab dose separately “so that if 100 people received 3 doses ... and all 100 died, the death rate would be 33% (100 deaths out of 300 doses)!”

Malone also points out that the FDA imposes an extremely narrow window for VAERS reporting; adverse events occurring more than one month post-jab usually don’t count. Yet the journal Cell reported in January that synthetic mRNA continues producing spike protein and antigens in the body for at least 60 days.

And why the six-month cut-off in The Lancet paper? Was it to exclude children and teens, who did not begin getting the jab until May? Problems have since plagued that age group. For instance, the December British Medical Journal reported that “risk of myocarditis [heart inflammation] following vaccination is consistently higher in younger males.” A study in November’s issue of Clinical Infectious Diseases found “significant increase in the risk of acute myocarditis/pericarditis [heart lining inflammation]” among vaccinated male adolescents.

Perhaps that is why former English football player Matt Le Tissier told Oracle Films in February, “I’ve never seen anything like it.... It’s unbelievable how many sports players are keeling over.” Le Tissier is calling on health leaders in the U.K. to investigate a five-fold increase in cardiac events and deaths among athletes in 2021 compared to the previous 12-year average, noting an additional uptick in medical emergencies occurring among fans since lockdowns were lifted.

U.S. health officials also have no answer for recent skyrocketing mortality unrelated to Covid. During a December news conference hosted by the Indiana Chamber of Commerce, Scott Davison, president of the insurance company OneAmerica, reported an unprecedented 40-percent increase in all-cause mortality among working age adults in 2021, most of which was not related to Covid. He said that “a one-in-200-year catastrophe would be 10 percent increase over pre-pandemic. So 40 percent is just unheard of.”

But can we trust bureaucrats to investigate honestly? Even The New York Times admitted in February that the “CDC isn’t publishing large portions of the Covid data it collects,” withholding crucial information on boosters, hospitalizations, and even wastewater analysis. CDC spokesman Kristen Norlund explained the deception, claiming the data was “not yet ready for prime time” and could easily be misinterpreted. (Read: the agency had not scrubbed it yet.)

It could have also stymied the Biden administration’s massive pro-vaccine media campaign. In March, The Blaze obtained documents through a Freedom of Information Act request revealing that the “federal government paid hundreds of media companies to advertise” the jab while their reporting and editorial departments gilded the lily with positive news coverage. The total tab: $1 billion in taxpayer money Congress appropriated in 2021 for HHS to “strengthen vaccine confidence in the United States.” In a press release, Liberty Counsel chair Mat Staver opined, “People have been injured and died as a result of the most extensive propaganda campaign in U.S. history, and it was paid for with our taxpayer dollars.”

But isn’t the disease worse than the reputed cure? Through mid-March, the World Health Organization (WHO) records more than six million Covid deaths, while nearly 11 billion jab doses have been administered. Missing from WHO's online "Coronavirus Dashboard" is data from its VigiAccess database: 3.4 million adverse reactions to Covid vaccines reported worldwide. WHO admits that, like VAERS, VigiAccess numbers are under-estimates. Alarming, 70 percent of WHO's adverse cases involve the 18- to 64-year age group, while "more than 80% of COVID-19 deaths occur in individuals aged 65 years or older," according to an analysis of CDC data by the nonprofit Physicians for Informed Consent. The Mayo Clinic's website says individuals age 85 and older are at highest risk of serious Covid complications.

Why should low-risk groups gamble on the vaccine? "I could do damage to somebody else, even if I have no symptoms at all," prated Dr. Anthony Fauci, head of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), on NBC's Today Show. "And that's the reason why you've gotta be careful and get vaccinated."

That's never been true, and he knows it. WHO exposed asymptomatic transmission as a myth in June 2020 at a briefing in Geneva. The agency's technical lead of Covid-19 response, Dr. Maria Van Kerkhove, stated, "We have a number of reports from countries who are doing very detailed contact tracing ... and they are not finding secondary transmission." She noted, "It's very rare, and much of that is not published in the literature."

Kerkhove backpedaled the next day during a follow-up session, saying that "around 40 percent of transmission may be due to asymptomatic." As justification for her outrageous flip, she cited bureaucratic forecast modeling instead of clinical research. It took a full year for WHO to admit its model estimates were bogus, stating in June 25 testing strategy recommendations that "widespread asymptomatic population screening" is a waste of time and money and in fact negatively impacts outbreak management due to high incidence of false positives.

Covid Politics

"I'm going to call it out.... This is corruption, plain and simple," said Dr. Pierre

Kory, pulmonary and critical-care specialist and founder of the Front Line COVID-19 Critical Care Alliance, during a January panel discussion on Capitol Hill hosted by U.S. Senator Ron Johnson (R-Wis.). Condemning the U.S. health system for putting "profits ahead of patients," Dr. Kory alleged that bureaucrats are intentionally suppressing off-label use of safe treatments because they do not "provide profit to the system." He declared that in the U.S. pandemic response, "Almost every single policy serves the interest of a pharmaceutical company."

Others backed up his charge. "NIAID ... co-owns the patent on the Moderna vaccine. [Four] members of the NIAID get royalties from the profits," stated Dr. Aaron Kheriaty, former director of the medical ethics program at University of California-Irvine Health, who lost his job of 15 years for refusing the Covid jab. Senator Johnson cited further conflicts of interest among bureaucrats authorized to approve the vaccines as well as toxic but highly profitable Covid medications such as remdesivir.

And what better way to ensure steady profits than a mandate for annual boosters? "If they can get every person required [to take] an annual vaccine, that is a recurring return of money going into their company," FDA executive Christopher Cole told an undercover Project Veritas reporter in footage released in February. Cole is part of the agency's countermeasures initiative, which oversees vaccine approval. He admitted that Big Pharma firms "pay us hundreds of millions of dollars a year to hire and keep the reviewers to approve their products." He bragged, "There's almost a billion dollars a year going into FDA's budget from the people we regulate."

Such corruption is nothing new in the vaccine world. A decade ago, the journal Accountability in Research complained of "Conflicts of Interest in Vaccine Safety Research." Among other damning evidence, it reported rampant collusion between federal agencies and Big Pharma, which sponsors a majority of vaccine-safety research and medical journals and funds a large part of the FDA's budget.

Additionally, since 1986 Congress has exempted Big Pharma from product liability for vaccines that CDC places on its childhood immunization schedule. In similar fashion, the federal government protects Covid vaccine manufacturers. In 2020, HHS preemptively declared pharmaceutical companies immune from liability related to “COVID-19 countermeasures,” citing the 2005 Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness (PREP) Act.

Advocating for vax-injured: U.S. Senator Ron Johnson (R-Wis.) invited all major players from federal agencies and Big Pharma to his Covid roundtable discussion on Capitol Hill in January. None of them showed up.

To continue bolstering the crisis narrative, Biden has extended indefinitely his Federal National Emergency Declaration, which was due to expire March 1. He is also planning to mandate annual Covid jabs, even for children as young as six months, as Project Veritas revealed. Cole acknowledged the plan’s absurdity due to a dearth of safety and efficacy tests, especially in children and pregnant women. The agenda explains why the U.S. government purchased 50 million doses of Pfizer’s pediatric Covid vaccine last October, before it granted EUA for kids as young as five.

Big Brother and Big Pharma have indeed reached a new level of corruption. Cardiologist and internist Dr. Peter McCullough, a leader in successful Covid ambulatory treatment, testified in Senator Johnson’s panel discussion about the unprecedented absence of an independent review board to monitor Covid vaccine safety in the general public. “I am testifying today that the program would have been shut down in February [2021] because of excess mortality.” He warned, “If America can learn anything we should never have the FDA and CDC be a sponsor of a public program.”

McCullough explained another first for Covid vaccines. Clinical trials excluded large groups of individuals — pregnant women and Covid-recovered among them — because of the high likelihood of problems that could result. But since EUA approval, these same groups have been encouraged and even coerced to get the jab, in stark contrast to regulatory precedent. McCullough said that helps explain skyrocketing VAERS statistics. “It’s wrongdoing by those in positions of regulatory authority,” he avowed.

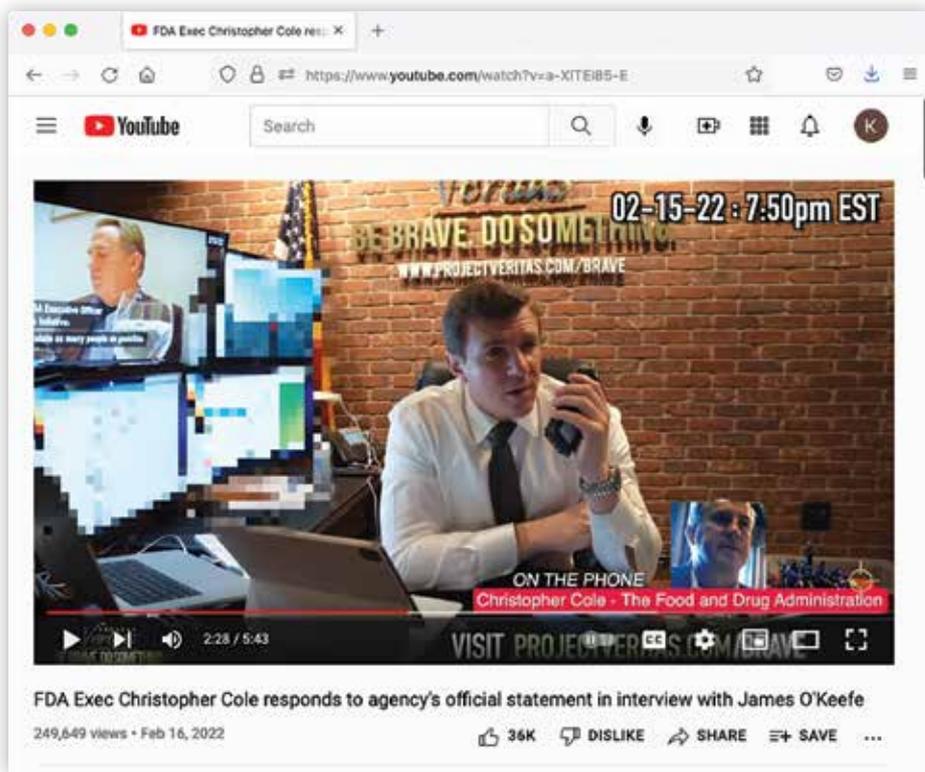

Malfeasance has reached such a pitch that health officials are now dictating how doctors practice medicine. Kheriaty related his experience with the California medical board, which last year threatened all physicians in the state with investigation and disciplinary action should they write “inappropriate” exemptions for “COVID-related measures.” As a result, it is virtually impossible to get any medical exemption, even for conditions CDC lists as contraindications to Covid vaccines. He has a patient whose rheumatologist advised her not to be inoculated because it could worsen her underlying autoimmune disease. Since her employer mandates the job, she asked the specialist to write an exemption. He refused for fear he might lose his license.

The situation is not confined to California. Kyle Warner, a 29-year-old professional mountain-bike racer from Boise, Idaho, whose career was cut short by the Pfizer jab, told Senator Johnson’s panel that even he cannot get an exemption for boosters because his doctor is afraid she will lose her medical license for writing it.

DOD Data

Others are willing to put their professional careers on the line to expose government fraud. Attorney Tom Renz, representing three U.S. military whistleblowers, testified before Senator Johnson’s panel regarding data the three medical doctors uncovered from the comprehensive Defense Medical Epidemiology Database (DMED). In the first 10 months of 2021, neurological issues shot up more than 1,000 percent over the previous five-year average. Cancers and miscarriages rose by almost 300 percent. Further DMED data posted on the Renz Law website include an alarming 2,181-percent spike in hypertension, a 468-percent increase in pulmonary embolism, and a heartbreaking 155-percent increase in birth defects.

The statistics prompted one of the whistleblowers, aerospace medicine specialist Lieutenant Colonel Dr. Theresa Long, to recommend grounding Army pilots who already received the jab. She testified in a previous hearing on Capitol Hill in December, calling the vaccine a greater threat to military readiness than the virus, and revealing a criminal disregard among military leaders for the health and safety of U.S. servicemen.

FDA’s hidden agenda: James O’Keefe of Project Veritas recently uncovered shocking evidence of the Biden administration’s plans to inoculate every American with experimental Covid vaccines.

AP Images

Military guinea pigs: Three U.S. Army physicians-turned-whistleblowers are warning that the Covid-19 shot is riskier to the nation's armed forces than is the disease. They allege that DOD is treating soldiers like lab rats.

“So we skipped two years of Phase II trials, and three years of Phase III trials. We only lost 12 active-duty soldiers to Covid. Yet we’re going to risk the health of the entire fighting force on a vaccine we only had two months of safety data on?” she recalled asking a senior Army medical official last May. His response: “You’re damned right, Colonel, and you’re going to get every soldier you can to take the vaccine so I can get enough data points to determine if the vaccine is safe.”

It isn’t safe or effective, as further Department of Defense (DOD) research shows. Last September, DOD covertly reported to CDC that 71 percent of its new Covid cases and 68 percent of Covid hospitalizations were among the fully vaccinated. Renz said it was about this time that Washington coined the phrase “pandemic of the unvaccinated,” and he condemned that blatant deception as “corruption at the highest level.”

Within a week of Renz’s testimony, DOD blamed an alleged computer glitch for underreporting the previous five years’ data, and the agency released doctored figures. “To believe these brand-new DOD numbers you have to believe that the DOD under-reported all cases on this military database by around 20 million per year for 5 years,” said Renz. “Yes, my friends, this is what a cover-up looks like.”

Renz’s extensive documentation is the basis of a lawsuit he filed in U.S. District Court in February on behalf of America’s Frontline Doctors. The plaintiffs accuse the federal government of intentionally deceiving the public about Covid vaccines, calling it “the greatest fraud in the history of the world.”

We should have seen it coming. The Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security plainly spelled out insiders’ pandemic plans in 2017 with publication of “SPARS Pandemic, 2025-2028: A Futuristic Scenario for Public Health Risk Communicators.” In the sidebar on page 17, Alex Newman reveals the fiendish details of this and similar pre-Covid exercises funded by groups such as the World Economic Forum and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. The parallels between the pandemic and its prequel are striking, including a massive push for expedited experimental vaccines, liability protection for their manufacturers, plans to stifle dissenters, and an ensuing flood of adverse reactions to the shots. Of interest is the fact that long-term neurological symptoms began to emerge one year after inoculation.

Is it just coincidence that FDA asked a U.S. District Court in January for 75 years to fully release the data it used to authorize the Pfizer vaccine? The judge denied the request, and in March the agency relinquished 55,000 pages of data. They list a shocking 1,291 different adverse events — including cardiac and neurological damage and pregnancy complications — with more to come considering the 380,000-plus pages remaining to fulfill the Freedom of Information Act request that prompted the lawsuit.

The Solution

“This is what happens when medicine merges with the state. We get the worst of both,” wrote former U.S. Representative Ron Paul from his Institute for Peace and Prosperity. He called for “separation of medicine and the state,” without which we can expect further violations of our God-given right to bodily autonomy, to the point of life-threatening mandates.

Unbridled bureaucratic vice is only a symptom of an out-of-control, tyrannical government. We need a cure for modern slavery more than for Covid, and that cure is the U.S. Constitution, which prohibits federal encroachment in almost every area of life, including healthcare.

Fortunately, the growing resistance to mandates and other Covid restrictions shows that people are waking up to the shackles that government overreach has long placed on them. Americans are realizing that the cure for Covid isn’t found in a syringe. The healthy solution will protect both our lives and liberty, restoring constitutional shackles on government so doctors can practice medicine, patients can call their own shots, and everyone can enjoy the new normal of freedom. ■

Will Children Survive THE COVID CRISIS?

Government's draconian response to Covid-19 has inflicted a scourge of ills on a generation of children that will negatively impact the future of our nation unless we tell them (and they hear) the truth.

by Annalisa Pesek

They have been called the lost generation, their lives devastated by lockdowns, daily mask-wearing, social distancing, and forced vaccines. As a “two weeks to stop the spread” lockdown turned into two years and counting, millions of children were confined to their homes with computers and cellphones, barred from seeing their friends or playing sports.

Even as restrictions are lifting for adults, maybe temporarily, kids continue to be crushed by cruel mandates, despite being “1,000 times less likely to die from COVID-19 than the more vulnerable older population,” as Stanford professor Dr. Jay Bhattacharya has explained.

Seizing the opportunity to teach obedience training to the babies, New York City Mayor Eric Adams has announced that masks, while no longer required for school-age children and adults, “will continue to be required for all settings with children under 5 years of age, including programs contracted by the New York City Department of Education with 3- and 4-year-old children as well as 3K and 4K classrooms in district schools.”

For the past two years, to attend most U.S. schools, children have been forced to adhere to extreme requirements, including masking indoors and during recess outdoors, per the guidance of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

But are parents even aware that their kids eat lunch outside in the rain and cold, each student separated by six feet to ensure social distancing?

Last December, a disturbing video went viral of a group of kindergartners sitting outside on buckets and eating their lunches under a covered area at a school in Portland, Oregon.

“CHILD ABUSE: Kindergartners were forced to eat lunch outside in 40 degree weather.... They sit on buckets to social distance from their classmates,” read the alarming tweet by Post Millennial writer Katie DavisCourt.

Responding to parent and community concerns of the troubling scene, White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki shared that her own three-year-old son snacks and lunches outside and wears a mask inside. “It’s no big deal to him,” said Psaki, endorsing the preposterous notion that kids are safer eating outdoors in winter rather than eating indoors maskless.

Indoors, outdoors, masks in general are a filthy idea, and there are data to prove it. Last June, a University of Florida lab analysis of masks worn by school children ages 6-11, for an average of 5.7 hours a day, showed 83 percent of the mask contaminated with multiple strains of bacteria causing serious disease, including pneumonia, meningitis, fever, ulcers, acne, yeast infections, strep throat, and periodontal disease.

As if mandatory masks and social isolation were not enough, what about a forced experimental shot that comes with risks that could cause irreparable harm?

Genetically Editing Generations

More and more studies are being released showing both the risks and benefits of messenger-RNA-based vaccines. The damaging side effects of the shots in healthy children are heightening the risks and outweighing the benefits.

Dr. Robert Malone, an inventor of the mRNA technology used in Covid-19 vaccines, has been creating awareness of these risks for months. During a recent speech in Washington State, Malone cautioned that when a child gets the shot, a viral gene is injected into his cells, with code for a synthetically engineered protein.

“We’re learning more on a daily basis about the nature of that protein [that] forces your child’s body to make toxic spike proteins,” he said. “These proteins often cause critical damage in children’s organs.” Malone warned that such damage may include “damages to their brain and nervous systems, their heart and blood vessels, including blood clots, their reproductive system, and this vaccine can trigger fundamental changes to their immune systems.”

Still, many are ignoring the warnings. Starting in fall 2022, California will become the first state to require all K-12 students in the Los Angeles and San Diego school districts to be vaccinated. Washington State is close to approving the measure as well.

Even more unbelievable is that none of the so-called experts (Dr. Anthony Fauci) or conservative pundits (Tucker Carlson) are weighing in on the risks of lesions in the brain, heart-tissue scarring, or a genetically reset immune system. Nor are they reporting on the dangerous pathogens found in face masks worn for six to eight hours a day.

In the Sunshine State, however, where vaccine and mask mandates are illegal, parents are encouraged not to vaccinate their healthy children. Florida’s top health officials have issued new guidance that children may be at a higher risk from the vaccine than the coronavirus itself. Florida Surgeon General Dr. Joseph Ladapo said in a March 8 statement, “Based on currently available data, the risks of administering COVID-19 vaccination among healthy children may outweigh the benefits. That is why these decisions should be made on an individual basis, and never mandated.”

A Pandemic of Fear

Another real impact of harmful mandates is the incredible fear pressed upon America’s children. As psychiatrist Dr. Mark McDonald explains in his new book United States of Fear: How America Fell Victim to a Mass Delusional Psychosis, while the viral “pandemic” was raging, a “profound, rapid, and nearly universal deterioration in Americans’ mental health was exploding.”

While the extent of the damage of lockdowns, masking, and social distancing may not be understood for years, what is certain today is that kids are deathly afraid, and their anxiety is manifesting in severe mental-health disorders causing record-breaking hospitalization and suicide rates.

The CDC reported in early 2021 that emergency-room visits for suspected suicide attempts were 51 percent higher for adolescent girls and four percent higher for adolescent boys, compared with the same time period in early 2019. The American Academy of Pediatrics, American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, and Children’s Hospital Association also declared the current state of children’s mental health a national emergency, stating the “pandemic has intensified an already ongoing crisis.”

Even President Joe Biden, during his first State of the Union address, tackled the topic of children’s mental health, admitting “lives and education have been turned upside down” though refusing to acknowledge how his policies have played a role in that outcome.

In his private practice in Los Angeles, Dr. McDonald has treated thousands of young people. At the onset of the Covid outbreak in summer 2020, parents flooded his inbox with pleas for help for their emotionally shattered children.

Writes McDonald, “one [parent] told me his eight-year-old son had put his fist through a plate-glass window at home, unable to tolerate being confined to a two-room apartment, 24 hours a day for months on end. Another patient started wetting the bed again. Yet another attacked her brother with a kitchen knife.”

However, many families left his practice

Stop the ongoing abuse of children: It’s time parents remove their children from school systems that force masking and harmful vaccinations. These abusive policies have made children deathly afraid of everything, from their peers to their spaces to the very air they breathe.

First, do no harm: Though children have a 50-percent higher risk of drowning than dying from Covid-19, the federal government and the medical establishment at large continue to push an experimental “vaccine” that can cause irreparable harm, including damage to the brain and nervous system, the heart and blood vessels, and the reproductive system.

when McDonald tried to offer information that would assuage their fears about the health risks posed to their children. He observed particularly erratic behavior of mothers refusing to bring their children to appointments. The moms believed simply walking through McDonald’s public office building would greatly increase the chances of catching Covid. Despite evidence that children are all but immune to the virus, and a lack of scientific proof that masking or school closures kept a single child safe, McDonald says, the idea of confining children to their homes soothed parental anxieties.

Of the mother of one child he was treating, McDonald wrote, “Nothing I said could dissuade her from her belief that her daughter was at substantial risk for serious illness and death, in addition to being a vector for a disease that could invade their hillside estate.”

Irrational beliefs that a person is no longer safe in a store or a restaurant without a mask are derived from “a bizarre worldview,” asserts McDonald, “with a degree of religiosity I had only previously encountered in hospitalized psychiatric patients.”

McDonald was genuinely shocked at seeing some women supporting closing schools and masking children. “They justified their position by saying that ‘we need to keep our children safe,’” he writes.

However, in the recent past, Dr. McDonald has changed his policy, and is now refusing to treat children who wear masks in his office, issuing a letter to all his patients that reads, in part, “just as I would never tolerate a parent beating their child or burning him with a cigarette lighter in my presence, I will not condone or allow minors to enter my office with their faces covered.”

Overcoming this fear addiction is a top priority for McDonald, who says he is ready to support any patient who wants “to move forward toward health and freedom from fear.”

Darkness Visible

It doesn’t take a Stanford graduate to know that fear can warp a child’s mind. Academy Award-winning actress Goldie Hawn, in a recent op-ed for USA Today, articulated the concept quite eloquently. “A child’s mind exposed to real-world fear, without the ability to properly process it, can go down dark passages leading to nothing less than existential dread,” wrote the Hollywood star. She went on to state what the mass media have largely ignored: “Today, we are in the midst of a national trauma that could very well surpass 9/11 and approach the heightened terror of the Cold War years.”

Hawn’s concerns echoed a discussion by McDonald in his book United States of Fear on the post-World War II years, in which he writes, “the 50s brought fears of Communism infiltration and overarching nuclear anxiety as people built bomb shelters in their backyards, and children were subjected to frightening (and ultimately pointless) duck and cover drills.”

Hawn recalled that as a fifth-grader watching a training video for nuclear war she had “never seen anything so horrible, and it looked so real. At the end, a deep voice warned us: ‘This is what will happen when there’s an enemy attack.’”

Similarly, today’s youth are equally terrified of an attack by an invisible virus. Yet McDonald reminds us that fear in and of itself is not necessarily a bad thing. It can become harmful “when it arrives at the wrong time, for the wrong reason, or beyond the length of time it is needed.” Irrational thinking must not dominate.

Change Is a Choice

As pathologist Dr. Ryan Cole declared to a packed church in Washington State, “Truth is what you follow no matter how inconvenient it is. Why am I here? Because I saw LIES — limited ideas entertained within our society. They brought FEAR — false expectations as real. This isn’t about me... It’s about the future generations.”

Though healthy children have been injected with the pandemic of fear, they still represent America’s last, best hope against damage done by lockdowns and other Covid-19 policies. Will they accept the truth and recover from years of mask-wearing, social distancing, and vaccine boosters to pursue life, liberty, and happiness?

Certainly, they will need to be retrained as children of curiosity, not of compliance, possessing courage over fear, desiring to think for themselves and to think creatively, to build new industries and artistic compositions. They must reintegrate into their lives moral integrity and compassion for others, traits Americans have possessed for the past 245 years and which have made this great nation a beacon of light for the rest of the world. ■

HEROES OF THE PANDEMIC

Shunning the mainstream narrative, many doctors around the world have risked their careers and professional reputations to save lives during the Covid pandemic with time-tested, repurposed drugs. Research now proves they have been right all along.

by Veronika Kyrylenko

Two years into the pandemic, America's Covid death count is truly heartbreaking, surpassing 915,000 as of mid-February. Even more agonizing is that most of these deaths could have been prevented had the U.S. medical establishment used early treatments such as ivermectin (IVM), hydroxychloroquine (HCQ), and other repurposed drugs and vitamins. Instead, prescribing these widely used and long-known remedies spells career suicide for doctors. Big Tech purges content related to "unapproved" early treatments and censors those who share it. Suddenly, remedies used countless times around the world in the most vulnerable populations, such as infants and pregnant women, are synonymous with poison.

Mere days after the World Health Organization (WHO) declared the pandemic in March 2020, doctors already knew how to treat SARS-CoV-2 infection. Hundreds of practicing physicians around the globe began treating patients, reporting great results with repurposed drugs, yet few have learned of this success since Big Tech works 24/7 to scrub evidence from all media platforms.

In his book The Real Anthony Fauci: Bill Gates, Big Pharma, and the Global War on Democracy and Public Health, attorney, activist, and Children's Health Defense founder Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. noted, "On March 13 [2020], a Michigan doctor and trader, Dr. James Torado, M.D., tweeted his review of HCQ as an effective COVID treatment, including a link to a public Google doc. Google quietly scrubbed Dr. Torado's memo. This was six days before the President [Trump] endorsed HCQ. Google apparently didn't want users to think Torado's message was missing; rather, the Big Tech platform wanted the public to believe that Torado's memo never even existed."

Google is not alone. Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg vowed before Congress in 2020 to ruthlessly combat "misinformation" about Covid treatments. "Stating that there's a proven cure for COVID when there is in fact none" could cause "imminent risk of harm," he claimed.

Sharing content on the "efficacy and/or safety of preventative measures, treatments" for Covid is a big no-no for Twitter users, according to its "COVID-19 Misleading Information Policy." Posts including "false or misleading claims about potentially harmful and unapproved treatments or preventative measures" violate the policy and are deleted.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) led a deceptive smear campaign against IVM, often used against a wide range of human and animal parasites and viruses. "You are not a horse. You are not a cow. Seriously, y'all. Stop it," the agency tweeted. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), while admitting the drug is “generally safe and well tolerated” if used as prescribed, recommended against using it as Covid treatment. (Interestingly, the agency advises all foreign refugees to take IVM for at least five days before coming to America but does not specify whether the purpose is deworming or as a prophylaxis against Covid.)

Director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) Dr. Anthony Fauci was even more straightforward against the highly promising drug. He said it “potentially has toxicity,” and urged Americans not to take it. Instead, he urged everyone to stay home, “socially” distance, wear masks, only go to the hospital for extreme cases, and wait until vaccines arrive. The cardinal sin would be listening to fringe doctors who use unapproved early treatments.

His strategy was a complete disaster, as even its promoters now acknowledge. Lockdowns left the economy in shambles. The number of excess deaths from untreated disease, suicides, and drug overdose is off the charts. Masks and social distancing have not stopped the spread. Vaccines, touted as life-saving, are injuring and killing people while failing to prevent transmission and disease. Moreover, studies suggest a negative efficacy, meaning the vaccinated are more likely to catch Covid. Steve Kirsch, a famed Silicon Valley philanthropist who founded the COVID-19 Early Treatment Fund and Vaccine Safety Research Foundation, offered $1 million to anyone who can prove that a single strategy employed by the U.S. government against Covid works. The offer is still open.

Casus Belli

World-renowned internist, cardiologist, and epidemiologist Dr. Peter McCullough told THE NEW AMERICAN in April 2021 that outpatient treatments are a “missing pillar” of pandemic response. He pointed out that while Americans were locking down, wearing masks, socially distancing, and awaiting experimental vaccines, the priority should have been to treat people and give them reasonable hope. Instead, the priority was fear, followed by the false solution of vaccines.

“United States government, along with its stakeholders, CDC, NIH [National Institutes of Health], FDA, Big Pharma, World Health Organization, [Bill & Melinda] Gates Foundation, they had made a commitment to the mass vaccination as the only solution to the COVID-19 pandemic,” McCullough said.

Treatments such as HCQ and IVM threatened vaccine manufacturers. According to statutes for emergency use authorization (EUA), “If there is an available agent which can provide protection against the threat ... and mitigate it,” then the vaccines could not be granted EUA. Were HCQ or IVM acknowledged as effective remedies against Covid, manufacturers would have been forced to submit to regular clinical trial processes. Those could take years of rigorous safety and efficacy testing, meaning no immediate return on investment, and possibly none in years to come.

The war on early treatments had a distinct political underlying motive beyond vaccine promotion. Democrats, mainstream media, and Big Tech knew their raging smear campaign and fruitless impeachment efforts against Donald Trump were going nowhere, for the president’s “America First” agenda materialized in robust economic growth and record-low unemployment. That spelled trouble for Democrats in the 2020 presidential election. When Covid arrived and Trump endorsed HCQ as a “game changer,” they accused him of “trying to kill Americans” with the “unstudied” drug, ignoring its 65-year safety record.

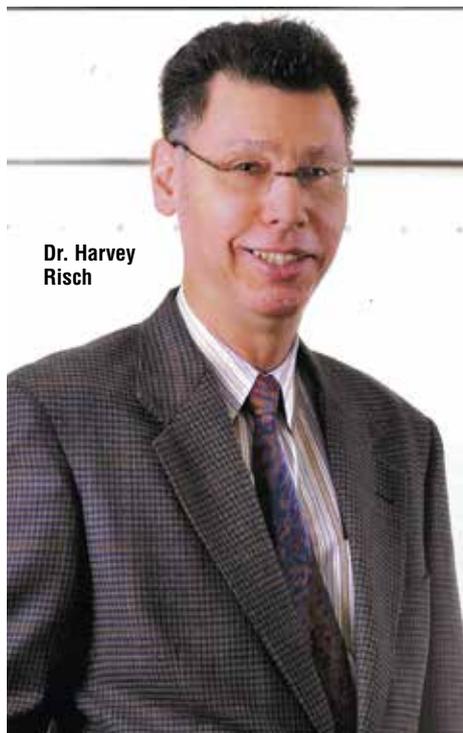

“It’s like saying, ‘Maybe if you inject Clorox in your blood, it may cure you.’ Come on, man!.. What in God’s name is he doing?!” lamented then-presidential candidate Joe Biden. He called Trump’s HCQ endorsement “totally irresponsible” and “counterproductive,” and cited unnamed studies that presumably found HCQ “doing more harm than good.”

Suddenly, remedies used countless times around the world in the most vulnerable populations, such as infants and pregnant women, are synonymous with poison.

Heroes and Remedies

In his book on Fauci, Kennedy quotes Dr. Harvey Risch, a leading Yale epidemiologist: “Unless you are an island nation prepared to shut out the world, you can’t stop a global viral pandemic, but you can make it less deadly. Our objective should have been to devise treatments that would reduce hospitalization and death. We could have easily defanged COVID-19 so that it was less lethal than a seasonal flu. We could have done this quickly. We could have saved hundreds of thousands of lives.”

We really could have. We had all the tools:

Hydroxychloroquine: One of the first American doctors to tackle Covid was Dr. Vladimir “Zev” Zelenko, a New York-based board-certified physician with more than 20 years of professional experience. He has personally treated thousands of patients and consulted with peer physicians on four continents. In 2020, he penned open letters to the medical community and to Trump, detailing his recommended treatment using a combination of HCQ, the antibiotic azithromycin, and zinc sulfate.

“We know that hydroxychloroquine helps zinc enter the cell. We know that zinc slows viral replication within the cell.

Regarding the use of azithromycin, I postulate it prevents secondary bacterial infections. These three drugs are well known and usually well tolerated, hence the risk to the patient is low.” He continued, “My urgent recommendation is to initiate treatment in the outpatient setting as soon as possible in accordance with the above. Based on my direct experience, it prevents acute respiratory distress syndrome (ARDS), prevents the need for hospitalization and saves lives.”

A 2020 peer-reviewed study of the Zelenko protocol, accepted for publication in the International Journal of Antimicrobial Agents, found it “decreased hospitalizations by 84% and resulted in a 5-fold reduction in death.” This translates into nearly 770,000 needlessly lost lives.

In further testimony to the U.S. Senate Committee on Homeland Security in December 2020, Dr. Zelenko reported no Covid deaths among his high-risk patients. These included Holocaust survivors in their 90s, cancer patients, and diabetics, who normally experience up to a 20-percent fatality rate. All patients who followed his early treatment survived, he said.

Risch experienced similar results. In 2020, he published an article in the Ameri- can Journal of Epidemiology titled “Early Outpatient Treatment of Symptomatic, High-Risk Covid-19 Patients that Should be Ramped-Up Immediately as Key to the Pandemic Crisis.” He referenced five clinical trials that showed the “significant major outpatient treatment efficacy” of HCQ coupled with azithromycin.

Likewise in 2020, McCullough published “Pathophysiological Basis and Rationale for Early Outpatient Treatment of SARS-CoV-2 (COVID-19) Infection” in the American Journal of Medicine with a subsequent update in Reviews in Cardiovascular Medicine. It was the first synthesis of sequenced multidrug treatment of ambulatory patients infected with SARS-CoV-2. McCullough successfully treated his Covid patients with a combination of HCQ, zinc, azithromycin, doxycycline, aspirin, and other widely used drugs. In January 2022, he testified on Capitol Hill that the protocol had proven to prevent as many as 95 percent of Covid deaths.

Dr. Ryan Cole testified with McCullough. Cole is a Mayo Clinic and Columbia University-trained anatomic/clinical pathologist and CEO/medical director of Cole Diagnostics, the largest independent lab in Idaho. He has treated thousands of early-stage patients using McCullough’s protocol. He related the story of his brother, who called him in a panic with an oxygen level at 86 and excruciating lung pain. Two hours after starting treatment, the pain had subsided and his oxygen reached a robust 98 percent.

Cole also told Kennedy, “Early treatment of COVID-19, plain and simple, saves lives. If the medical profession had been forward-thinking and hands-on, and focused on this disease, with an early outpatient multi-drug approach, knowing that COVID-19 is an inflammatory clotting disease, hundreds of thousands of lives could have been saved in the U.S.”

Covid czar Fauci spurns such real-world evidence, insisting that until HCQ proves its worth in lengthy randomized clinical trials, bureaucrats will continue blocking access to it. That’s been going on since June 2020, when the FDA stripped the drug’s EUA, preventing distribution from the Strategic National Stockpile. Tragically unnoticed is an October 2020 paper posted on the NIH website that found hydroxychloroquine “is effective, and consistently so when provided early, for COVID-19.” A real-time analysis involving 313 peer-reviewed studies as of mid-February has come to the same conclusion.

Ivermectin: Ivermectin, a decades-old antiparasitic and antiviral drug, took center stage in April 2020, when Australian researchers from Monash University found that just a single dose could stop the SARS-CoV-2 growing in cell culture.

“We found that even a single dose could essentially remove all viral RNA by 48 hours and that even at 24 hours there was a really significant reduction in it,” Monash Biomedicine Discovery Institute’s Dr. Kylie Wagstaff revealed.

All subsequent real-world and clinical studies showed the drug’s outstanding efficacy against Covid. Writes Kennedy, “Since March 1, 2020, some front-line ICU and ER doctors began using ivermectin in combination with HCQ in early treatment protocols.... More than 20 randomized clinical trials (RCT) have confirmed its miraculous efficacy against COVID for both inpatient and outpatient treatment. Six of seven meta-analyses of IVM treatment RCTs completed in 2021 found notable reduction in COVID-19 mortality.”

Ivermectin is the cornerstone of treatment recommended by the Front Line COVID-19 Critical Care Alliance (FLCCC). “We regard ivermectin as a core medication in the prevention and treatment of COVID-19,” reads the website. The group’s co-founder and president, Dr. Pierre Kory, testified on Capitol Hill that “ivermectin could reduce hospitalizations by almost 90 percent and deaths by almost 75 percent.”

Speaking with THE NEW AMERICAN in January, Dr. Kory noted that while ivermectin and other repurposed drugs are extremely effective against Covid, they are also extremely cheap, and therefore do not interest pharmaceutical companies and corrupt U.S. health authorities, which Dr. Kory dubs “federal pharmaceutical agencies.” He said, “We really have to fight a war to get this information out.”

“Why don’t they talk about Vitamin D?” asked Dr. Paul Marik, FLCCC’s co-found-

Dr. Paul Marik

The New American

er. “It’s cheap, you can go to the pharmacy and get it over the counter. [But] nobody’s going to make money.” That is a huge threat to Big Pharma, he told THE NEW AMERICAN. Marik successfully treated Covid ICU patients at the onset of the pandemic before his hospital administration pulled the plug on his protocol. He could not even give his Covid patients Vitamin C.

“What was left was remdesivir,” said the doctor, describing the horrific toxicity of the expensive drug. That was “evil in its purest form,” Dr. Marik lamented. “It’s murder. They are basically murdering people in hospitals.” Because he refused to use remdesivir, Dr. Marik’s hospital privileges were revoked in November.

The FDA has approved intravenous remdesivir for Covid treatment in hospitalized adults and children 12 years of age and older who weigh more than 88 pounds. The agency also granted EUA for younger children who are hospitalized. CDC says the drug “should not be withheld” from pregnant women, even though the agency admits that this population was excluded from clinical trials evaluating remdesivir’s safety and efficacy.

Many of the studies supporting NIH’s recommendation of remdesivir were conducted on animals or were in vitro studies, meaning they involved microorganisms, cells, or biological molecules, not people. Human studies were at best a mixed bag; two authoritative trials by the FDA showed remdesivir to be ineffective and unsafe. They also indicated that a majority of the participants in the several remdesivir studies have suffered adverse effects such as liver and kidney damage and multi-organ failure. Previously, in 2019, remdesivir manufacturer Gilead had to terminate the drug’s Ebola trials because 54 percent of the recipients died within 28 days. In November 2020, the World Health Organization recommended against remdesivir in hospitalized Covid patients, regardless of disease severity. The agency cited a lack of evidence showing the drug’s efficacy.

Others note its lethality. “Remdesivir increases a risk of death by three percent,” said Dr. Marik during Capitol Hill testimony, adding that the drug increases the chance of renal failure by 20 percent. Yet the federal government incentivizes hospitals to administer the dangerous medication. Hospitals receive a whopping bonus — 20 percent of patients’ bills — for prescribing the drug according to NIH protocols.

“The hospital is a dangerous place for sick people,” Dr. Marik told THE NEW AMERICAN. “If you have Covid, you’d better stay home. Get oxygen at home. Get whatever treatment you have at home.” He added, “Isn’t it an unfortunate indictment of the healthcare system that a physician who has been practicing in an ICU for 35 years would say such an astonishing thing?”

Drs. Risch, Zelenko, McCullough, Cole, Kory, and Marik are just a few among the massive cohort of physicians who have remained true to their profession and their Hippocratic Oath. FLCCC alone has more than 1,000 members. In a just world, they would be celebrated as true heroes.

“True heroism is remarkably sober, very undramatic. It is not the urge to surpass all others at whatever cost, but the urge to serve others at whatever cost,” said tennis star Arthur Ashe. The brave hero-doctors are living examples of this important lesson that resonates with the very spirit of the American Republic so well. ■

The Horrific Costs of GOVERNMENT COVID POLICIES

Roman Chekhovskoy/Stock/GettyimagesPlus

Governments' responses to the Covid pandemic have cost trillions of dollars and have resulted in many more lives lost than saved.

by William F. Jasper

How much has the Covid-19 “pandemic” cost the U.S. economy? How about globally? What about economic costs to the average American family? To very poor families in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East, especially those already at the near-starvation level? Have costs due to government-mandated Covid policies surpassed the benefits that those policies (ostensibly) were imposed to confer? Have government policies resulted in lives lost, and, if so, how many?

William F. Jasper is a senior editor of THE NEW AMERICAN.

These are important questions for which it is difficult to find precise, cut-and-dried answers. One reason is that there are many complex variables involved in cost-benefit analyses of the multiplicity of Covid policies (lockdowns, quarantines, mask mandates, testing, vaccine passports, social-distancing, etc.) and the various degrees to which local, state, and national governments have imposed them.

The more troubling reason we don't have satisfactory answers to these questions is that politicians and technocrats who have foisted these unprecedented, draconian restrictions on us have not even bothered to ask these questions. Having ramped up public hysteria with relentless Covid propaganda that amounts to pan-demical porn, they have essentially said we will spend “whatever it costs” — even if it means money we don't have, running up trillions of dollars of debt with which our children and grandchildren will be burdened — to spare us from the “existential threat” from a virus with a lethality little greater than that of the common flu.

Politicians worldwide echoed then-New York Governor Andrew Cuomo, who, in March 2020, said, “My mother is not expendable. Your mother is not expendable. . . . We're not going to accept the premise that human life is disposable, and we're not going to put a dollar figure on human life. The first order of business is to save lives, period. Whatever it costs.”

No sane, moral person holds that human life is disposable, but as a matter of public policy, public officials regularly do (and should) “put a dollar figure on human life,” so to speak. That is not being callous; it is being responsible and moral. When central planners take trillions of dollars from taxpayers for a supposedly beneficial “public” purpose, they are reducing the amount of money those citizens have for food, fuel, health-care, medical care, education, and other purposes. The poorer the taxpayer is, the greater will be the negative impact of the government's extraction from his income. There are real life-and-death consequences to costly government policies. The financially struggling janitor/mechanic/teacher/farmer/family breadwinners who can't afford to get their cancer screening or scheduled surgery because the state has confiscated so much of their income may, as a result, lose years of their lives — not to mention losing health and quality of life.

Andrew Cuomo and politicians like him know they are engaging in rank demagoguery when they ignore standard cost-benefit analysis and posture as moral paragons while profligately spending other people's hard-earned money.

$11 Trillion, $16 Trillion, $50 Trillion?

In October 2020, the Global Preparedness Monitoring Board (GPMB) issued its report on the Covid pandemic, “A World in Disorder,” observing that global spending on responses to the virus had, up to that point, already topped $11 trillion, with an additional $10 trillion anticipated in loss of future earnings due to the virus. Published the same month as the GPMB report, another study in the Journal of the American Medical Association, co-authored by former Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers and Harvard University economist David Cutler, estimated the “cumulative financial costs of the COVID-19 pandemic related to the lost output and health reduction will be more than $16 trillion, or roughly 90% of annual GDP of the United States.”

A report by the Canadian government agency Statistics Canada found that government-enforced lockdowns killed four times as many people as did Covid.

Covid crimes: Investigations reveal that former New York Governor Andrew Cuomo lied about deaths resulting from his 2020 directive that sent thousands of Covid patients into nursing homes.

“For a family of 4,” the authors suggest, “the estimated loss would be nearly $200,000. About half of this amount is the lost income from the COVID-19-induced recession; the remainder is the economic impact of shorter and less healthy life.”

“Output losses of this magnitude are immense,” the authors continue. “The lost output in the Great Recession was only one-quarter as large. The economic loss is more than twice the total monetary outlay for all the wars the United States has fought since 9/11, including those in Afghanistan, Iraq and Syria.” This unprecedented government spending binge is beyond “immense”; it is stupendously gargantuan! Dr. Ari R. Joffe, a professor of pediatric medicine at the University of Alberta, points to studies indicating the loss in terms of GDP will be “easily US$50 trillion over the coming decade.” Other economic estimates simply say “tens of trillions.”

How much of this lost income, lost output, and health detriment is due to the virus itself, and how much is due to reaction to the virus (i.e., government policies imposed as the “cure”)? Is it not worth investigating to see whether the government’s confiscation of a vast percentage of private wealth is ultimately harmful and being misspent in ways that are exacerbating the problem? Curiously, neither the GPMB nor the Summers/Cutler study answers those crucial questions. Considering the sources, that is not surprising. The GPMB, a joint project of the UN’s World Health Organization and the World Bank, is co-chaired by radical globalist Gro Harlem Brundtland (former Norwegian prime minister, former vice president of Socialist International, former UN apparatchik) and Elhadj As Sy, a career UN flunky from Senegal. Serving on the GPMB board of directors are Anthony Fauci and a dozen internationalist confederates of similar ilk. The authors of “A World in Disorder” do not criticize wild Covid spending. Why would they, since GPMB leaders are all on record as enthusiastic supporters of the same? Instead, they specifically insist we must “invest” even more in the “Build Back Better” agenda of the World Economic Forum (WEF) and Joe Biden, as well as sustainable development goals and global health security programs of the UN. It is no surprise that Klaus Schwab and his Davos billionaires club showcase the GPMB reports on the WEF website and feature GPMB leaders at the Davos confabs of the rich and famous.

While not explicitly boosting the UN/ WEF agenda as does the GPMB report, the Summers/Cutler study not only fails to address the gigantic issue of misallocation/malinvestment (theft is a more honest term) of trillions of dollars by governments, but also recommends that even more money be “invested” by governments on authoritarian “testing, contact tracing and isolation,” which they say “should be established on a permanent basis, not to be dismantled when the concerns about COVID-19 begin to recede.” The authors don’t even mention the term “lockdown,” let alone consider what common sense, observation, and numerous studies have now shown: The lockdowns and other Covid restrictions, more than the virus itself, are responsible for much — if not most — of the socioeconomic devastation of the past two years. Summers is a longtime member of the globalist Council on Foreign Relations and a participant in gatherings of the WEF and the ultra-elite Bilderberg Group, so this genuflection to statism is par for the course.

Studies by the World Bank, Brookings Institution, Oxfam International, and other internationalist-minded organizations have provided similarly misguided analyses. They don't make any true cost-benefit analysis, though they often pretend to, knowing they can count on their allies in the Fake News media mob to spread their misinformation.

A typical example is a New York Times story of October 21, 2020, "The Coronavirus Has Claimed 2.5 Million Years of Potential Life in the U.S.," reporting on a study by Stephen Elledge, a geneticist at Harvard. Elledge based his findings on the years lost by the reported 220,000 deaths in the United States up to that time attributed to the virus. The Times and other media used this study to further whip up hysteria in support of Covid restrictions. Aside from very serious problems with inflated Covid death data — combining "dying with Covid" and "dying of Covid" — the Elledge study fails to properly contextualize the data by pointing out that far more "potential life years" have been taken by government responses to Covid than by the virus itself.

The Deadly "Cure"

Jeffrey A. Tucker at the American Institute for Economic Research (AIER) refers to this overwhelming bias in major media as "lockdown denialism" and cites numerous examples throughout print and broadcast media. For instance, largely ignored is the November 2020 study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association showing that closure of U.S. primary schools could be associated with an estimated 13.8 million years of life expectancy lost.

A report by the Canadian government agency Statistics Canada found that government-enforced lockdowns killed four times as many people as did Covid. The report, "Provisional death counts and excess mortality," reviewed the number of deaths between January 2020 and April 2021 and found that 5,535 Canadians under age 65 died because of "indirect consequences" of the pandemic. During that same time period, 1,380 Canadians in the same age group died because of Covid itself. The indirect causes, according to the report, included delayed medical procedures and increased substance abuse and alcohol consumption.

The lockdowns, quarantines, social distancing, mask mandates, and other restrictions that destroyed millions of jobs and businesses also spread a plague of fear, anxiety, loneliness, boredom, isolation, desperation, and anger that, in turn, has produced a pandemic of depression, mental illness, suicide, murder, violent crime, spousal and child abuse, family breakup, and more. These tragic social developments have dire long-term economic consequences that defy precise calculation but will be immense.

As a result of lockdowns in 2020, the United States experienced the highest unemployment rates since government began collecting that data in 1948. Even before Covid, numerous studies had documented the deadly effects of unemployment. Many additional studies now confirm this. One, by researchers at Duke, Johns Hopkins, and Harvard universities and published by the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER), finds that the drop in life expectancy in the United States due to Covid unemployment shock will likely be "a staggering 0.84 and 1.22 million excess deaths over the next 15 and 20 years, respectively."

Commenting on the NBER study, Ethan Yang at the American Institute for Economic Research wryly notes that, "contrary to the prevailing narrative, a bad economy kills too." Sifting through the study's dense statistics, Yang observes that although increased mortality reaches "peak severity about three years after the unemployment spike," the "bulk of excess deaths do not occur suddenly but years in the future and they don't return to normal for up to 20 years down the line."

In a separate article for AIER, Ethan Yang and Amelia Janaskie write, "In a court of law, the burden of proof falls on those who wish to take away the liberty of the accused. Likewise, in the realm of policy, the burden of proof should be on those who wish to impose laws and restrictions on an otherwise free population." They note, "This practice is not only morally sound, but practically sound as well. Public health interventions ought to be justified through rigorous cost-benefit analysis and honest conversations about the limitations of the policies involved." Unfortunately, public officials will not move in this direction unless and until a sufficiently sizable, awakened, and determined segment of the public motivates them to do so. ■

IS THE CURE

This campaign, jointly launched by The John Birch Society and THE NEW AMERICAN magazine in early 2020, is the right medicine for the Covid-19 “plandemic” and any future Deep State overreach.

by Larry Greenley

THE NEW AMERICAN established leadership against Covid tyranny with its “Freedom Is the Cure” Special Report in April 2020.

Government cannot stop the coronavirus. Like a cytokine storm, its totalitarian impulses can only make a health crisis that is dangerous to a few into a crisis that is deadly for many.

— Dennis Behreandt, “Freedom Is the Cure,” THE NEW AMERICAN, April 20, 2020

What an important two years this has been for THE NEW AMERICAN! With its “Freedom Is the Cure” Special Report, THE NEW AMERICAN and its parent organization, The John Birch Society, established their leadership position regarding Covid-19 and never looked back. While most Americans and other organizations were coping with “flatten the curve” mandates and lockdowns, a mere one month into the pandemic THE NEW AMERICAN/JBS mission was already clear — to counter the disastrous effects of the government’s totalitarian pandemic response with constitutional principles of freedom.

The John Birch Society Launched Its “Freedom Is the Cure” Campaign.

JBS outreach includes its membership bulletin, legislative alerts, and web-based resources, educating citizens and public officials about how to apply Article VI and the constitutional principle of nullification to roll back lockdowns, mask mandates, and compulsory vaccines at the federal, state, and local levels. JBS action has contributed significantly to the large volume of state legislation ending Covid mandates and regulations.

A prime example of leadership by THE NEW AMERICAN magazine against Covid tyranny was its early publicizing of Dr. Zelenko’s successful hydroxychloroquine protocol for treating Covid-19.

Although Big Pharma and its close allies in the CDC and FDA went to great lengths to maintain the fiction that there were no treatments for Covid-19, TNA Video posted its groundbreaking “Defeating COVID-19 with Hydroxychloroquine + Zinc & Azithromycin” on May 15, 2020.

The slogan “Freedom Is the Cure” became reality when Dr. Zelenko, Dr. McCullough, and their colleagues demonstrated successful Covid treatments based on hydroxychloroquine, ivermectin, and other medicines and supplements. Sorrowfully, what was lacking was both the freedom to communicate their protocols widely via leading internet platforms and the freedom of other doctors to prescribe these generic medicines.

JBS members provided leadership against the Covid tyranny by putting up two “Freedom Is the Cure” billboards in Spokane, Washington.

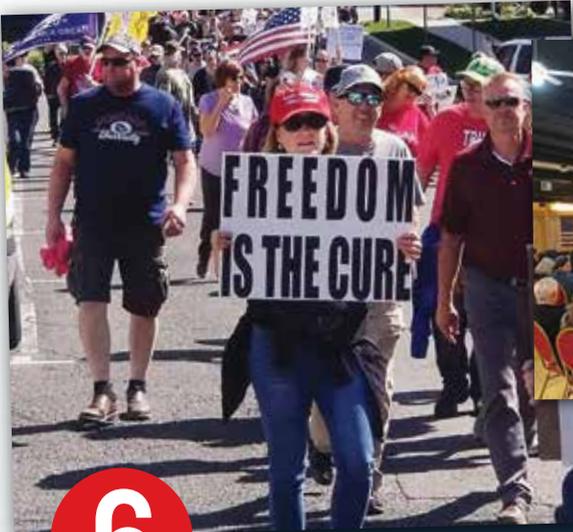

Although the two billboards were taken down just days after being put up (due to negative “community” response), the advertising company that owned the signs refunded the billboard money. Regional coverage of this incident in the local left-wing newspaper resulted in an outpouring of support and inquiries from people who wanted to join the JBS or learn more about it. According to the local JBS regional field director, “I’ve gotten new members and at least one whole new chapter starting up, as a result, and a lot of excitement.”

A key strategy of the JBS “Freedom Is the Cure” campaign is nullification of unconstitutional Covid regulations based on Article VI of the U.S. Constitution.

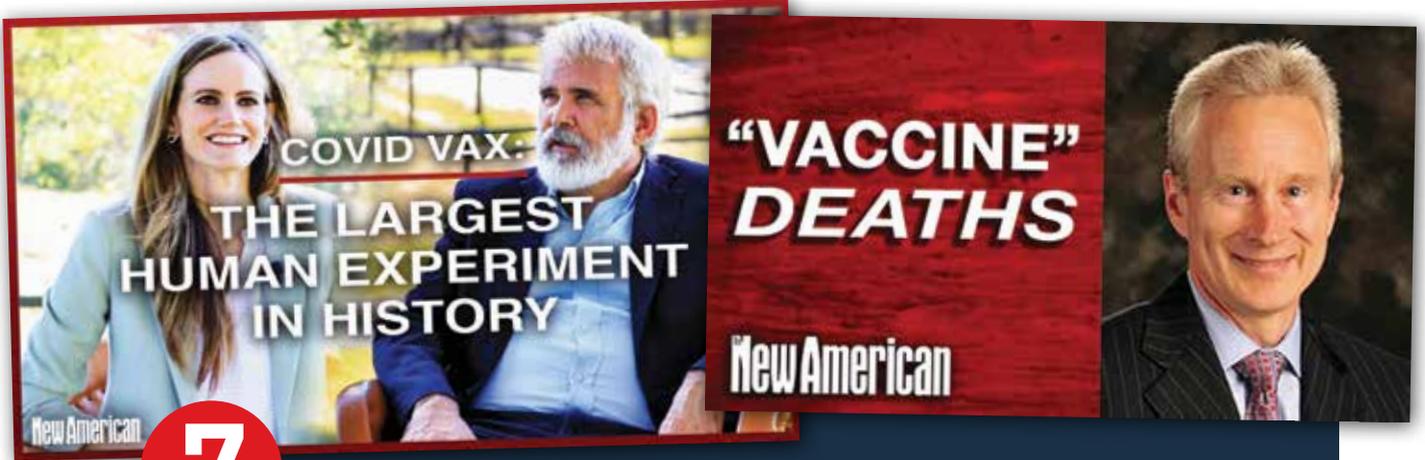

According to Article VI, every local, state, and federal official who has sworn an oath to uphold the Constitution is duty-bound to oppose laws not made in pursuance of it. (Graphic from the JBS Article VI booklet, available as a free PDF at JBS.org/covid19)

Since we believe that freedom is the cure, our mission is to provide leadership in educating American voters about the principles of freedom.

The “Freedom Is the Cure” campaign helps educate the public on how to use the Constitution and Bill of Rights to defend themselves. We invite all to join our nationwide network at JBS.org to expose the Deep State and restore freedom in America.

Arguably the greatest leadership contribution by THE NEW AMERICAN and The John Birch Society in the fight against Covid tyranny has been hundreds of videos produced from 2020 to 2022.

This huge video output included “The Largest Human Experiment in History,” a one-hour interview with mRNA vaccine pioneer Dr. Robert Malone, and “Vaccine’ Deaths” with Dr. Peter McCullough. THE NEW AMERICAN and The John Birch Society played a crucial role in providing an alternative media outlet for many doctors who risked (and often lost) their jobs to spread the truth about the “plandemic.”

THE NEW AMERICAN Covered the Defeat the Mandates Rally.

THE NEW AMERICAN played a leadership role in the fight against Covid tyranny by sending two reporters and a supporting crew to cover this rally in Washington, D.C. We provided an important outlet for the many doctors and experts who attended.

Nullification: the Bane of Covid Overreach

Whether it began as a plan to make up for lost globalist ground due to the Trump administration's focus on America First, a lab release from America's number-one enemy, or a bioweapon committed to depopulation, two definite conclusions can be made about the Covid-19 "pandemic": It has been used as an excuse to usher in tyranny, and it has helped to energize freedom-lovers around the world.

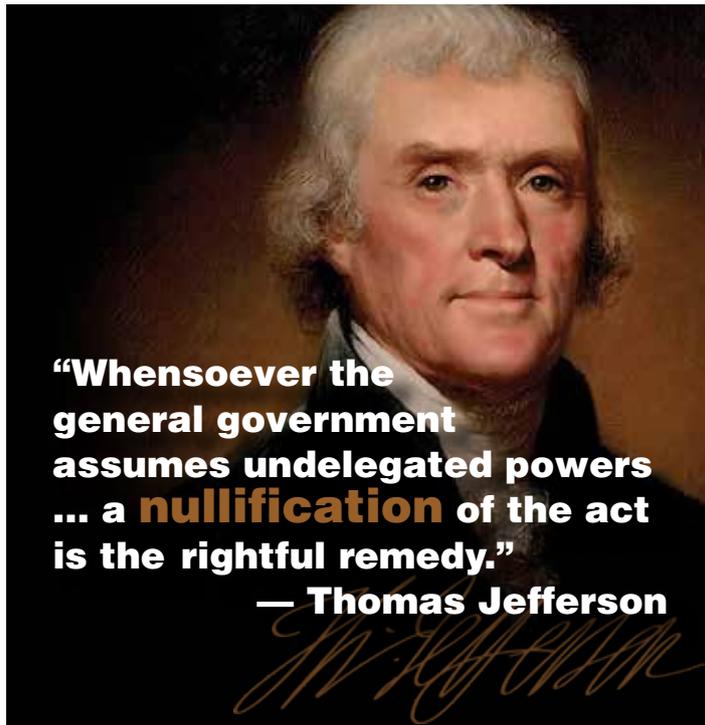

Covid-19 will eventually be exposed as a hammer of oppression. Early studies indicate the negative effects of government overreaction on Americans' physical and mental health. Once the long-term effects of the Covid "vaccines" become known, this will further erode the confidence many have placed in their government and the healthcare establishment, which were joined in lockstep in their pandemic ploys.

The Founding Fathers crafted the U.S. Constitution for a moral and religious people, who are more apt to self-governance. But they also knew of mankind's tendency to moral decline, which prompted them to enact the prudent rule of law rather than democratic mob rule. As Thomas Jefferson stated in the Kentucky Resolutions of 1798, "in questions of power then, let no more be heard of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution."

Covid-19 tyranny has taught Americans a lesson: Either control your government or it will control you. We at The John Birch Society (JBS) and THE NEW AMERICAN sum it up this way: No matter the ailment, freedom is the cure.

Over the last two years, who and what have come to America's rescue from Covid tyranny? Did any of the single-issue organizations out there?

Examples of what did conquer tyranny include state governors and legislatures pushing back against federal mandates. Various groups took government usurpers to court, while local officials and bodies (e.g., sheriffs, county boards, city councils, prosecuting attorneys, mayors, etc.) refused to enforce mandates and lockdowns, regardless of origin. These examples display the direct responsibility and correct line of action our Founders expected through the use of nullification, as well as the correct application of the judicial system.

How many single-issue organizations even mentioned the use of nullification — the legal guarantee that state and local governments have the power to invalidate any federal activity that violates the Constitution?

Our Founders expected civic participation to keep elected officials accountable. Please do not think that you are fulfilling civic duty by voting for a specific political party in each election. No party holds a monopoly on tyranny — or freedom. Government can and will quickly blow past its constitutional restraints if your participation is only limited to voting.

Recall that the Founders used information to educate the populace and build support for independence from Great Britain in the 1760s and '70s. For more than a decade, they strengthened the case by disseminating educational literature through organized committees of correspondence.

The John Birch Society has successfully used this tactic for more than 60 years. This country would have fallen to the globalists decades ago if it weren't for the JBS. To regain freedom, government must be placed back into its constitutional limitations. To do so, We The People and state legislators must learn how to exercise nullification against all infringements and usurpations. It doesn't take a constitutional scholar to obey and follow the Constitution that was written for the common man.

While the rest of America was wringing its hands wondering what to do, JBS members and supporters tirelessly worked throughout the "pandemic" to restore freedom. JBS led the charge in various states to roll back governors' emergency powers — which no one person should have. Members also informed many sheriffs of their constitutionally guaranteed power to resist freedom-crushing mandates.

The "pandemic" presented ample opportunity to show that the concept of nullification actually works.

Your God-given rights are not negotiable. It's time Americans begin realizing this and using the tools at their disposal. Join others in your area working to restore freedom today. Join The John Birch Society at JBS.org. ■
